FOUR KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

Two Women Patients Perish in Fire at Hospital in St. Louis

Smoke Caused Deaths

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A brief, but blistering general alarm fire killed two women patients Thursday night at the state mental hospital. More than 1,000 other patients were threatened but quick work by firemen and others prevented greater tragedy.

About 1,200 patients, some in wheelchairs, were removed into sub-freezing temperatures from a women's dormitory in a nearby auditorium. Most of them wore only night clothes and were barefoot, although some managed to drape blankets around them. A majority of the patients were evacuated within 30-minutes after the blaze was discovered.

The first alarm sounded at 9:22 p.m. (cst) in the long, rambling, old five-story brick building, which is almost 100 years old.

The blaze broke out in a linen closet on the third floor of the dormitory and spread rapidly through a room with nine beds into a hallway. Cause of the fire and an estimate of the damage were not immediately determined.

Firemen at a nearby station house have long familiarized themselves with the buildings of the sprawling South St. Louis hospital complex for such an emergency. The complex houses about 2,600 patients and covers almost nine city blocks.

Assistant Fire Chief Robert Olsen said the fire was so hot that it held the firemen back for a few moments, despite their masks and protective fire suits. But once they caught up with the blaze in the hallway, they put it out almost immediately.

One fireman suffered a minor case of smoke inhalation.

The dead were identified as Miss Brenda Robinson, 19, and Mrs. Ruth Lucks, 62. Both apparently were victims of smoke inhalation, authorities said.

After the fire was out, most of the patients returned to wards in the wing that were not damaged. Others were housed in the gym, cafeteria. canteens and corridors with cots and blankets supplied by the Red Cross.

About 150 students nurses in training at the hospital from all over the state had staged a practice fire drill in the building only hours before the blaze broke out.

The students were off duty, but a spokesman said they rushed to the building and aided in the evacuation.

One person was treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Thursday. Andy Vanover, Sikeston hit his head at home.

Visit Africa But Stay out of Congo Shirley Duncan Tells Bootheel Dinner Club

Miss Shirley Duncan, writer and world traveler, of Melbourne, Australia, told Bootheel Dinner Club guests last night at the Holiday Inn to take a long African journey, but by all means stay out of the Congo.

Present were around 250 dinner guests of the almost 300 members, as announced by Chairman Alex Klein, who informed the members that an additional 23 members joined to bring the membership to capacity, due to lack of seating arrangements in this city. Mrs. Bess Copeland, Kewanee, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boyer, were awarded the two table decoration floral sprays.

Miss Duncan, made a tour that began in Paris, and circled the entire African continent on a two-year journey, that took her to every country along the east and west coast, including a long stay with Dr. Albert Schweitzer in his Gabon territory hospital, located on the equator.

"I didn't expect to be gone so long on this journey," she said. "But the time it takes to get a visa for every small and large country on this continent, and the high cost of living for tourists, as well as slow travel, made it necessary. Modern hotel rooms often went as high as $17.50 per day, but my sideline writings and other work made it possible for me to earn a portion of my trip."

Her trip through Egypt and the Pyramids was among her highlights. "In spite of the many faults of President Nasser, conditions there are very progressive. It takes 30 minutes to climb to the top of the Pyramids, which has many passages inside, but all the treasures are many mummies. The necklace I am wearing is said to be over 3,000 years old."

"The growth of that country is now tremendous due to the building of the Aswan Dam, and a temple is now being rebuilt that should cost $40 million dollars."

She explained that Africa is divided between two types of people, the Arabs of the north, and the negroes of the south, and as a result there are many conflicts, because of the anti-white feeling, which is ten times as great as in the USA, according to Miss Duncan.

"Make no mistake about it, few journalists are ever permitted to return to that country, because they are very critical of some of the stories written about their country. Contraty to belief, only a few animals are to be seen on a trip, but if one will take side trips of several hundred miles you can see them." When she asked if the lions are vicious, she was told, "When you approach any type of a bush, always head for the sunny side, as they usually are found lying on the shady side."

The audience was informed never get in the way of an elephant, because they are light-footed and can be close to you without being heard, and therefore are always given the right-of-way. "This bracelet I have on was made from the few hair found on an elephant's tail. The eastern section of the continent around Leopoldville is going through a crime wave, and I had my purse snatched the day I arrived."

She was highly pleased with Zanzibar and the Mombosa section, and "I was there when Prince Philip was there on the day they were given their independence. Unfortunately the natives live from day to day and are not interested in the future. The Portuguese east coast is a friendly place, and the people are both friendly

Ralph Boyer, president of the Senior Chamber of Commerce, told of the Annual banquet being held on April 1, 1965, at the Sikeston Armory, with new arrangements providing comfortable seating for some 1200 people.

He also mentioned the Office Workers Conference to be held on a Saturday, for the benefit of all working women.

Clem Beal told of the sponsorship of the Sunrise Easter Services, and a Leadership Training Institute for both men and women by the Lion's Club.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? HE BECAME A MOTHER

NEW YORK (AP) -- Pierre is a gray seal. She has just become a mother at the Coney Island Aquarium. Result: Pierre's name is being changed to Michele.

"We had thought Pierre was a male," said Dr. Carlton Ray, associate curator. "But obviously we were wrong."

And the 35-pound baby born Wednesday also needs a name. One tankman suggested "Oops."

Predicts Tax On Trucks to Pay Cost

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., predicted higher taxes will be imposed on the trucking industry to pay the extra cost of the interstate highway system.

"It is my opinion that the President and the administration will propose and send to Capitol Hill a bill calling for an increase in taxes for the trucking industry," he said.

"This naturally is going to make the truckers unhappy and the rails happy, but it's one of those things."

Randolph is a member of the Senate Public Works Committee and chairman of its subcommittee on roads. He made his comment in a talk Thursday to the annual convention of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri.

The 41,000-mile interstate highway network, scheduled for completion in 1972, originally was estimated to cost $41 billion; but with 19,000 miles completed the Commerce Department has put out a new estimate of $46.8 billion.

"We had all anticipated an increase, but not one of this magnitude," Randolph said.

Taxes on gasoline and tires earmarked for the interstate program have produced about a billion more than expected, the senator said, and that will absorb some of the extra cost. The trucking industry, he said, has suggested these taxes could be extended beyond their 1972 expiration date. He said another possibility is diverting the 10 per cent tax on new cars from the government's general funds into the special highway fund. He said the new car tax produces about two billion a year.

THEY LEARNED SKUNKS ARE SKUNKS ALRIGHT

UNION CITY, Tenn. (AP) -- Turner Kirkland called in a reporter Thursday, saying he captured a badger -- rare in these parts -- in a cage - like trap.

"Looks more like a skunk to me," said the reporter.

"He's just got a white spot on his head -- not all the way down his back," said Kirkland as he jabbed the animal with a stick to get a better view.

Turned out the reporter was right.

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)-- Former Rep. Gene Sally, 33, of Rolla, is expected to be named secretary of the State Reciprocity Commission next week.

Office Workers Seminar

The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce is, for the third year, sponsoring a seminar for office workers. It will be held at the Holiday Inn, Saturday, Feb. 20 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Reservations may be made at any time by contacting the Chamber of Commerce.

Much of a firm's business is conducted over the telephone and every one needs refresher courses in telephone voice and manners. To present a talk on this subject will be Mrs. Ruby Blaine from the St. Louis office of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Miss Almaretta Sidwell and Mrs. Joan Grant from the senior high school staff will present a discussion, with demonstrations, of many shortcuts and time saving procedures for an office.

"Me And My Secretary" will be the title of a talk by Dr. Forrest H. Rose, dean of Southeast Missouri State College.

The feature speaker will be Mrs. Jo Roush, a native of Eminence, Mo., and now a private secretary with Hoffman-Taff Chemical Co. in Springfield, Mo. In 1963 she was selected "secretary of the day", which was sponsored by Chamber of Commerce of Springfield.

She has been chairman and sponsor of the Office Workers Seminar in Springfield. She is the former Missouri Division NSA president. Currently she is the Southwest District NSA representative on the International NSA Certified Professional Secretary Committee. And she is one of the 44 certified secretaries in Missouri. She attends many conferences, seminars, and conventions, not only in Missouri, but the Midwest.

Two Students do $1,205 Damage at Bloomfield High

BLOOMFIELD -- "We just wanted to get a longer vacation," was the explanation offered by one of two youths who are alleged to have admitted to setting fire to textbooks and other school supplies in the second and third floor corridors of the high school building Jan. 5.

According to Sheriff Temples, who apprehended and questioned the youths, one of them said they originally planned to let the air out of all the school bus tires but found the garage doors locked. They also told the sheriff a third boy "chickened out" when they started to break into the building.

Estimated damage to textbooks, reference books, school supplies and the cost of repairs to the walls and floors of the corridors was placed at $1205.50 Supt. Blankenship said Tuesday. The school district, the superintendent said, has no lawful authority to discipline the youths because their destructive acts were not committed during school hours.

Evidently the pair attempted to use a highly volatile fluid used for thinning duplicator ink and burn books and paper in a room next to the school principal's office. The evidence was found the following day.

A hearing will be held at the courthouse early next week with the juvenile officer present, Supt. Blankenship said.

Churchill Ill, and Confined To His Bed

LONDON (AP)-Sir Winston Churchill--90 and extremely feeble--was confined to bed at his London home today trying to throw off the effects of a cold. He has been ill for several days.

Though emphasizing that the illness gave no cause for alarm, a member of the Churchill family said that at Sir Winston's advanced age, any illness must be looked upon as serious.

"He's had a cold for several days," said Sir Winston's son, Randolph Churchill, from his country house at East Bergholt, Suffolk County.

Lord Moran, Sir Winston's private physician, said he would call at the home of Britain's great wartime leader late today.

After that visit-and a check-up--Lord Moran is expected to issue a medical bulletin on the health of his famous patient.

"He has his ups and downs. At his age every illness must be regarded as a serious one," Randolph said.

"This is a cold, however, and so far as I know, it's nothing more."

In the past, he has suffered a number of illnesses and had at least two strokes.

Invariably, he has bounced back, and birthday after birthday for the last five years or more, he has been able to totter to the ground-floor windows of his London home at Hyde Park Gate, smile and give his famous V-for-victory sign to well-wishers congregated outside.

Omaha Fire Fatal for Two Eight Injured

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) -- Fire which suddenly engulfed a first-floor tap room took the lives of two persons and injured eight in a downtown Omaha hotel early today.

The smell of smoke and an alert night clerk probably prevented more casualities.

Ed Evey, 50, the night clerk in the Eagle Hotel at 14th and Harney on the eastern edge of the Omaha business district smelled smoke about 4 a.m. He alerted the 50 guests of the 68-room hotel who fled into 15-degree cold.

Ivey said when he returned to the desk a blast of flame burst from the adjoining Silver Tap Room.

The deaths of Frederick Robidiou and Joseph Koksol were attributed to smoke inhalation.

Hearnes Appointed Four In Various State Offices

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reappointed Proctor N. Carter as State Welfare Director today and John D. Paulus Chief of Planning and acting Director of Public Buildings.

He also picked Philip V. Maher of Richmond Heights as his administrative assistant for urban affairs and to head the poverty program in Missouri.

The appointment of Austin Hill, former deputy secretary of state as Director of Public Health and Welfare was formally announced as expected.

Maher succeeds James Tice of Kansas City and Hill succeeds former Rep. Owen R. Jackson of Perry.

All the appointees are Democrats. Carter and Paulus are among the few survivors from the administration of former Gov. John M. Dalton. Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, highway patrol superintendent, is another.

Carter, 57, will be serving his sixth term as welfare director under five governors. He has shown uncanny ability in getting his appropriation requests approved by the legislature.

He was first appointed by the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in 1945 as administrator of the old Social Security Commission and became the first welfare director under the new constitution a year later. He has been reappointed by every governor since then.

He was assistant state relief administrator during the depression years and for six years was assistant administrator of the old Social Security Commission before joining the Army.

He served overseas in the military government program and emerged as a major. He has been welfare director since then.

He is a native of Doniphan but spent most of his boyhood in Columbia where his father, the late E. M. Carter, was secretary of the State Teachers Association more than 25 years.

He is married and the father of two sons.

Paulus, 55, is the first to serve as Chief of Planning. He is in charge of the state building program and is directly responsible to the governor.

His grandfather, father and brothers all have been Missouri architects. He got his architectural training at Washington University in St. Louis, his home town, at Harvard and at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He formerly worked for the National Park Service on plans for the St. Louis river front memorial. He was chief architect for the state park board and later director of the Bureau of Hospital Facilities in Missouri under the Hill-Burton program.

The appointment of Maher as administrative assistant for urban affairs fills a new job which Hearnes promised to set up in his speech to the legislature Wednesday and in his campaign.

Maher, 32, formerly was assistant St. Louis County counselor. In 1962 he was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee in the 2nd Congressional District.

In recent years he has been in private law practice. He is married and has a son and a daughter.

Hill, in addition to serving as health and welfare director, will be a liaison man between the governor's office and the legislature.

He and Hearnes served in the legislature together. Hill was a representative from Howard County eight years and served six years as chief clerk of the House.

Hill, 47, was born at Franklin and formerly lived in Columbia. He is married and the father of a daughter.

First Job Corps Camp is Opened in War on Poverty

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — The nation's first Job Corpsmen, the outriders in President Johnson's war on poverty, began training today at a mountain retreat that housed depression youth of the 1930s.

The pioneer group, which includes 11 Baltimoreans and 19 youngsters from Virginia and Kentucky, will occupy sturdy chestnut log cabins built 30 years ago by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The training site is in the isolated Catoctin Mountain National Park, about a mile from Camp David where two presidents frequently rested.

The youths will be sworn in at Baltimore City Hall and then will board a bus for the 60-mile trip.

Marion Pines, a 40-year-old Goucher College alumna who is in charge of recruiting in Baltimore, says her office has had at least 750 Job Corps applications in the last six weeks.

"I've never seen anything like it," Mrs. Pines says. "Enthusiasm? That's the understatement of the year."

She said when the nine Negroes and two whites were told they would make up the first group from Baltimore, "the kids couldn't believe it. It was

Two Men, Women, Victims

Four southeast Missouri residents were killed in a headon collision between two cars on Highway 25, two miles north of Kennett at 5:45 p.m. Thursday.

Dead are Leon Harper, 31, of Kennett and a passenger with him, Walter Wiseman, 56, also of Kennett; Mrs. Hazel Gales, 40, wife of Clarence Gales of Clarkton and a passenger with her, Mrs. Daisy Corrine Miller, 48, wife of Charles Miller, also of Clarkton.

The men were taken to the McDaniel Funeral Service, Kennett; Mrs. Gales to the Landes Funeral Home, Malden and Mrs. Miller to the Lentz Funeral Home, Kennett. Funeral arrangements for any of the victims had not been completed at noon.

According to the State Highway Patrol the Hopper car got on the wrong side of the highway and crashed into the Gales car head on.

The quadruple tragedy yesterday brought the total number of fatalities in the 14-county territory of Troop E to 11 as compared to only four during the similar period of 1964.

Disarmament Appeal Sent To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson sends Congress a special disarmament appeal today, asking that the work of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency be continued.

The agency, headed by William C. Foster, is responsible for formulating disarmament proposals, conducting international disarmament negotiations and directing research on disarmament problems.

The agency was created in September 1961, the first year of the Kennedy administration. Authority for its operation expires at the end of the present fiscal year, June 30.

Working closely with the State and Defense Departments, the disarmament agency has played a central role in negotiations with the Soviet Union and other countries.

These negotiations have been aimed at curbing the nuclear arms race and eventually bringing about a controlled and verified reduction of nuclear and military forces all over the world.

The present top priority of the Johnson administration in this field has been given to the negotiation of an agreement which would ban the spread of nuclear weapons beyond the five countries which now have or are in process of building them. The five are the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and Red China.

High priority also is given to expansion of the limited test-ban treaty, concluded in 1963, so that it would prohibit all types of weapons tests. This treaty, originally negotiated by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union, has been signed by 104 other countries, not including France and Red China.

It prohibits nuclear explosions in the atmosphere, outer space and underwater. A total ban also would prohibit underground tests. But so far the major nuclear powers have not been able to agree on how to police an underground test ban.

Both the test-ban objective and the hopes of a nonproliferation pact have been complicated greatly by Red China's entry into the nuclear arms race last October with the explosion of its first test bomb.

U.S. officials now say that before any new agreements in this field can be made wholly effective, some way will have to be found to bring the Red Chinese and the French into the picture.

They are not hopeful that this problem can be solved soon.

CALIFORNIA COURT HITS MACHINISTS UNION FOR POLITICAL SUPPRESSION

A California district Court of Appeals has hit a hard blow at the suppression of individual liberty by big monopoly unionism. The decision, on November 14, was in the widely-publicized "Expulsion" case. The union, International Association of Machinists, announced it will appeal the decision.

The case whirled around the Right to Work issue. Two workers at the Lockheed aircraft plant, both members of the machinists union, actively supported Right to Work legislation in the 1958 election. The men, Cecil C. Mitchell and John Mulgrew, were expelled by the union for "conduct unbecoming of union members." This was spelled out to mean that they had championed Right to Work while the union officials were denouncing it.

The two workers fought back for their freedom of speech. Various groups came to their aid. Funds were raised. Two outstanding lawyers, Edwin H. Franzen and William M. Miller, were employed. The California Committee for Voluntary Unionism and the Citizens Committee for Democracy in Labor Unions stayed behind the case through a lower court adverse decision and the long litigation of appeal.

The Appeals court held that the expulsion of the two workers by the union violated their freedom of speech and freedom of political activity. It noted significantly that coercion (through fear) of the entire union membership would result from the expulsions. The decision said in part: "Even though a member may keep his job when expelled, his expulsion causes him a detriment, the apprehension of which would have a coercive effect on the membership . . . Also he has a financial stake in the strike funds, perhaps a pension fund and other funds toward which he had contributed. Further, he is denied the right to participate in his union 'government.'" The decision also said: "Expulsion cannot serve to quiet the individual. It can serve only to quiet those who remain. . . The question is whether the community should tolerate that result . . . If this were the case we would be deprived of an immeasurably important source of political thought."

We hope that Governor Hearnes and the 1965 Missouri Legislature will enact the following:

MEDICAL CARE FOR THE AGED. -- At the last session of the Legislature, Missouri set up a medical care program for aged welfare recipients. The program called for $6,000,000 in Federal matching funds under the Kerr-Mills Act.

We urge review of that program for economy and efficiency and, in event of a favorable report, extension of benefits and expansion of recipients to include the "near needy" who we excluded only by a gubernatorial veto.

WHILE THERE'S LIFE

In the biography Bob Hope furnished Who's Who in America appears the modest line: "Entertained Service Forces, overseas, 1945." Actually Bob Hope and his troupe took off last month on their 24th annual visit to military outposts. Highlights of the tour, which included stops in Korea, Thailand, South Viet Nam, the Philippines, and Guam, will be shown on NBC-TV on Friday, Jan. 15.

Hope's constant companion on these Christmas jaunts has been Jerry Colonna. Les Brown and his band have missed only one. And Hope has always managed to round up a bevy of brave beauties. This trip was Anita Bryant's fifth.

The Hope troupe arrived in Saigon just minutes after the bombing of officers' quarters on Christmas Eve. They played to artillery accompaniment at the helicopter base at Vinh Long. "Well," said Hope, "We came over where the action is. We got a little more than expected, but that's okay."

The company played to more than 20,000 -- their biggest audience ever -- in Clark Air Force Base's Bamboo Bowl in the Philippines. Bob himself suffered second - degree sunburn of the lower lip.

During World War II and the Korean hostilities stage and screen stars vied with each other to entertain the troops. Katherine Cornell and Brian Aherne put on The Barrets of Wimpole Street wherever they could find an undemolished theatre. Lunt and Fontanne played uninterrupted during air raids. Marlene Dietrich sang Lili Marlene at Army service camps and accompanied herself on the musical saw.

The people of show biz played the G. I. circuit with real grace and considerable courage. But now, according to George Jessel, who returned in late December from a tour of classified installations in Europe, the troops are starved for entertainment.

While there's life -- and soldiers -- there's Hope. Which makes pretty prophetic Thomas Fuller, who wrote years ago, "Hope is worth any money."

"Oh. . .well, uh, it's nothing important," he said, and turned to leave.

"Young man," said the woman, "my sister and I have been running this drugstore for nearly 30 years. There is nothing you can tell us that will embarrass us."

"Well, all right," he said. "I have this awful sexual hunger that nothing will appease. No matter how many times I make love, I still want to make love again. Is there anything you can give me for it?"

"Just a moment," said the little lady, "I'll have to discuss this with my sister."

A few minutes later she returned, "The best we can offer," she said, "is $200 a week and a half-interest in the business."

IT FIGURES

A scientist has worked out a quick way to determine whether you are too fat. Dr. Norman B. Marshall, metabolic researcher for a drug firm, says to forget about pounds and use this formula:

Calculate your height in inches, then subtract your waistline measurement. Marshall says a difference of 36 is normal, 38 indicates a tendency toward leanness, and 33 or less indicates obesity.

Men, he says, should use the formula with their shoes on, women with their shoes off. Also, he added, for women it should be done with girdles off, and exhaling.

Correct English has some effect on actual life. Well a married couple wouldn't be worried about whether they were speaking correct english to one another. But in teaching they're children the right way to speak or write, will effect there relationship between each other. As a human being, to me, its' just as important to get along with people, but at the same time even the right kind of people, have to lower themselfs just because some of their friends, don't know the correct english language. WIFE NO LOUSE
IF HUBBY SOUSE

When a husband is intemperate is it usually a nagging wife who has driven him to drink?

No, says the Catholic Digest. "The type of woman who will drive her husband to drink" has no being in fact. At the University of Washington School of Medicine, investigators made an extensive study of wives of alcoholics and nonalcoholics. They found that the personality types of wives of temperate husbands were no different from those of alcoholics.

COP'S A FAILURE

The motorcycle policeman drew level with the speeding car, passed it, turned in front of it, and forced it to pull in at the side of the road, recounts the Digest of World Reading. Then he dismounted and came back, notebook and pencil at the ready to glare at the young woman driver.

"Didn't you see me back on the road there?" he demanded.

"No."

"Didn't you see me wave my hand?"

"No."

Didn't you hear my whistle?"

"No."

"Or my shout?"

"No."

"Didn't you hear my siren when I was chasing you?"

"No."

"You didn't see any of those things -- or hear any of those things?"

"No."

The cop rested an arm on the door of the car and bowed his head to it.

"Good heavens!" he sobbed. "I'm a failure!"

He immediately got it:

"Don't waste it on the boys!"

5734-B LOVES 6128-G

It apparently started at a Yale University dance, where of yore the girls from nearby women's colleges would flutter hopefully onto the campus to be met by an uneasy stag line of undergraduates to begin the awkward, uncertain process of pairing off.

At a recent dance, however, each girl was directed immediately to her date, who had been chosen earlier by questionnaires and a computer sorting device, as had she.

It was reportedly the most efficiently mixed mixer ever. Tall girls found tall boys; political sentiments were matched to like sentiments; good dancers found girls to whom that was important; intellectuals were introduced to intellectuals, and so on.

Then Purdue University used a computer to select "perfect dates" for a dance.

A similar procedure was tried at the University of Cincinnati, and at Michigan State University.

Sentimental types who are saddened by this mechanization of romance can take solace from the fact that these computerized affairs were not entirely successful.

For one thing, no machine is better than the information put into it and at Yale, at any rate, this resulted in a few cases of male disillusionment.

It seems that the only physical statistic on the girls' questionaires concerned height. Sponsors felt they couldn't come right out and ask a girl if she was good-looking.

The Russians, booted out of the Congo once before, are again scattering rubles like dragon's teeth in hopes of keeping the rebellion in the northeastern part of the country going.

They reportedly have agreed to provide weapons and money for an airlift of arms and advisers to the Congolese rebels, to be run by Egypt and Algeria.

The reasons for this latest Soviet safari into troubled jungles seem clear-cut. The central government of the Congo is not pro-Communist. Thus by Marxist logic it is anti-Communist. So the new leaders in the Kremlin are anxious to demonstrate to restless Africans that Russia will support all wars of righteous revolution against the colonialists or their lackeys.

It is also quite likely that they are not happy over the points the Red Chinese have been scoring as chief source of aid to the rebels. Anything the Chinese can do, they are in effect saying to African radicals, we Russians can do better.

The reasons behind the action of Algeria and the United Arab Republic are not so immediately evident. The leaders of these countries, while definitely anti - Western, do not want a Communist Africa dominated by either Russia or China.

What they want -- particularly by Nasser of Egypt -- is an Africa dominated from the Arab north. Nasser's dream of pan-Arab empire does not stop at the desert's edge.

A strong Congo could play a commanding role in the future of the continent.

Huge, rich and potentially populous, and lying as it does between expansionist Arab North Africa and isolated, white South Africa, the Congo has inevitably become an ideological battlefield.

The struggle, of course, is more than ideological. But despite the bloody events of recent days, the Congo may be closer to stability than it was six weeks or six months ago.

Whether it continues this progress or begins to retreat back to chaos now seems to depend on how vigorous this Arab-Russian pump - priming operation will be.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

A leader is a person born with a megaphone in his brain and a desire to shout his ability to the world.

Most great leaders in any field — whether they be politicians, soldiers, businessmen, evangelists, artists or rock 'n' roll singers — are to some extent megalomaniacs. This means they have a mania for great or grandiose performance, plus a feeling of personal omnipotence.

There are two types of megalomaniacs—the noisy ones and the quiet ones. If you have to work for one or another— and most people do—it is better to work for a noisy one.

You can always tell when you've satisfied the ego of a noisy megalomaniac; with a quiet one you're never sure.

No person is truly educated unless he looks up a word in the dictionary at least twice a week.

You hear a lot about romances between millionaires and hatcheck girls. But when it comes to marrying, most hatcheck girls wind up with musicians or bartenders.

Being cast up on a desert island all by yourself is pretty dismal, but the loneliest men in civilization are those who play golf with their wives on Saturday because they can't find three other guys to make a foursome.

Just holding things together is hardly enough in this world to make you a hero. Whoever built a statue to a paper clip?

A woman always should have something to look forward to. That's why a wise husband never gives his bride a diamond engagement ring until their 50th wedding anniversary.

The average beggar is about as shrewd a judge of human nature as the average personnel manager — but he can make quicker judgements.

It's high time universities gave course in "footballese," the gibberish in which sportscasters describe the art of pushing, kicking, or passing an inflated pigskin up and down a gridiron. It certainly is the most rapidly growing language in America, but I have yet to meet a fan able to tell me in English just what a "flanker back" is, and how he earns his living.

What makes many of us so neurotic isn't that we can't have what we want but that we are faced with so many choices we can't decide what we really do desire. The world was just as happy when ice cream came in only three flavors — vanilla, chocolate and strawberry.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Johnson doesn't know it, but he may have the John Birch Society as his neighbor.

Reed Benson, son of ex-President Eisenhower's Secretary of Agriculture, Ezra Taft Benson, is doing his best to locate the John Birch headquarters at 1750 Pennsylvania Avenue, just up the street from the White House.

The owner of the building, the Charles E. Smith Co., isn't too eager to have the right wing organization as a tenant. However, Benson has been persistent, is offering top-dollar rent.

This focuses attention on one of the ironic developments of the post-Eisenhower years, in which the son of the man whom Ike kept in the Cabinet for eight years has been campaigning all over the nation as paid representative of the John Birch Society, whose founder called Eisenhower "a dedicated agent for the Communist conspiracy."

It also focuses attention on the manner in which Reed Benson has used his father's position as an apostle in the Mormon church. By bringing the church into politics, Reed was able to score the only real victory for the Birchites during the recent election.

There is no question that Reed is Papa's boy. When Reed faced military service, his father, a member of the Mormon church's ruling "Council of Twelve," got him commissioned as a chaplain.

Later, when Reed left military service, Ezra got his son a top job in the Veterans Administration. Associates recall that Reed delivered political speeches, chewed licorice, and took naps. Since his father was a member of the Cabinet, the younger Benson did not have to extend himself as a bureaucrat.

--RELIGION TO BIRCHISM--

With the end of the Eisenhower administration, both father and son lost their jobs. Now Reed has become a pulpit-pounding, licorice-chewing evangelist for the John Birch Society. And despite the derogatory barbs which leading Birchites have aimed at Eisenhower, the elder Benson has dutifully put his prestige as an ex-Cabinet member and a Mormon apostle on the line for his son by showing up as a star attraction at John Birch rallies.

Reed did so much propagandizing for the Society at Mormon meetings, invoking the name of his father and hinting that he had even the support of the much-loved Mormon prophet, David O. McKay, that the church was obliged to disassociate itself from the John Birch Society, indirectly it also rebuked young Benson. A formal statement was issued by David O. McKay denouncing both the Communist party and the John Birch Society.

Unchastened, both Bensons kept up their John Birch activity outside of Mormon chapels until the church discreetly transferred apostle Benson to Europe.

This was precipitated, in part, by a restrained attack on him by Idaho's Congressman Ralph Harding, a Democrat and devout Mormon, who had been ordained as a missionary by Benson. In a choked voice, Harding told the House of Representatives it was the hardest speech he had ever felt it his duty to deliver.

--REED'S REVENGE--

The speech provoked young Benson to start a campaign of vengeance. He raised money, sent Birchers to picket Harding's speeches, even injected his own church (many of its members unwittingly) into politics to defeat the Congressman who had criticized his father.

During the early part of the campaign, several carloads of Birchites invaded Idaho to work against Harding, but they had little impact. Harding had been a conscientious Congressman, worked hard for his district. So Reed Benson took a new tack. He made it appear that Harding, though a Mormon, had been critical of his own church. Actually he had been critical not of Benson's religions but of his politics.

"Latter Day Saints (Mormons) are taught from childhood that criticism of church authorities is a very grievous sin," Congressman Harding wrote in a letter to a friend.

"In fact, in some Sunday School classes I have heard it taught that it ranks behind murder and adultery and ahead of such things as dishonesty, vulgarity, drunkenness.

"Therefore, throughout the campaign, Reed Benson and members of the Birch Society based their campaign among the Latter Day Saints people on the fact that Congressman Harding was guilty of a great sin when he criticized an apostle of the Lord.

"Some church leaders in Idaho became so carried away that they used the church to campaign against me, justifying their action because of my criticism of Apostle Benson.

"In addition, the John Birch Society circularized all members of the church with a full-page newspaper and containing a speech by Ezra Taft Benson criticizing me and praising the Birch Society. This same speech had been recorded on a radio tape by Apostle Benson and was sponsored over radio stations throughout the district by prominent church members, including many who did not even know that it was a speech supporting the Birch Society. They sponsored it simply because it was a speech by Apostle Ezra Taft Benson."

That was how Reed Benson managed to defeat one of the best Democratic congressmen from the Rocky Mountain states; also managed to score the only political victory for the John Birch Society in the last campaign. The Birchites spent a lot of time and money on various candidates. Thanks to the Benson father-and-son team and their use of their own church members, however, they scored one victory — in Idaho.

Crime Syndicates Now Solicit Fire-For-Hire Business.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: -- Enterprising Cosa Nostra chieftains, ever seeking new money-making "businesses", have developed a multi-million dollar "fire - for - hire" network operating successfully in 10 states.

With characteristic disdain for local law enforcement agencies, the Mafia syndicate leaders actually have put their arson specialists on the road soliciting business.

Their "clientele" are other leaders of organized crime who want fires set or places bombed into flames in order to collect insurance money on profitless restaurants and bars; or to terrorize legitimate restaurateurs or to warn unions to stay in line.

So successful has been the solicitation of the "have -torch -will-travel" advance men that the authorities believe they and local arsonists were responsible for 904 fraudulent fires of property insured for $36.5 million in 1964 alone.

Reports of the mobs' soliciting fire-setting business were confidentially turned over to the Justice Dept. last year by the country's leading authority on the traveling "torches." He is Brendan "Pete" Battle, manager of the Arson, Theft and Fraud Dept., National Board of Fire Underwriters, headquartered in New York City.

"Where a few years before, practically all attempted frauds had been individual acts of desperation," Mr. Battle said recently, "on the part of individual homeowners, small merchants or other business men, it was now found that professional fire-setters were soliciting business and taking care of a number of customers, most often in the same general area or in the same type of business enterprise."

In other words, the hoodlums' traveling arsonists--some of whom have gone as far as 1,000 miles on a job -- are specialists.

Most of them concentrate in the midwest states, but especially in the Chicago metropolitan area. However, since they operate in the same manner as professional gunmen, they live elsewhere and belong to distant sections of the Cosa Nostra.

Some rings discovered by Pete Battle and his flying squads consist of three men. But there have been as many as ten for a major job which requires considerable planning. Obviously there are plenty of arsonists, since some of their rings have been discovered in a total of 17 states ranging from upper New York to Florida, from the southwest away up to Alaska. Some of these have been wiped out, especially in New York and in the Southwest, according to the Fire Underwriters' reports.

This was accomplished by a unique system of intelligence about which Pete Battle will not talk. However, he did say not too long ago:

"A most gratifying and helpful development in the field of fraud fire investigation has resulted from the ready availability, country-wide, of special agents of this department to whom confidential information bearing on contemplated or anticipated fires is channeled. ."

Mr. Battle is the authority on the organized criminal syndicates and the torch-for-hire business. He reports that "more and more frequently" his men have found the links between professional fire setting and the Cosa Nostra.

Some of the "torch" specialists were at the 1957 "cook-out" crime convention in Apalachin, N. Y. One of the fire-setting group is a Mafia chief from the Pittston, Pa., district. Records reveal he is in the garment business.

Fire-setting by individuals of this type is also commonplace in their own local areas of operation. Some of those in the fire-for-hire operation are well known to the federal and local authorities as veteran racketeers mixed up in industrial rackets extortion, narcotics, prostitution, for many years.

Mr. Battle charges bluntly that "syndicate-hoodlums are believed to have been responsible for recent criminal fire-setting in at least 10 states in the East and Midwest. Bombings and arsons by these hoodlums are commonplace in the Metropolitan Chicago area and in two or three states along the eastern seaboard. . .We have been encountering with increasing frequency interstate travel on the part of gangland torches who have been given contracts calling for the destruction of business premises by fire.

". . .Racketeers have learned that fire-setting can be a very lucrative source of income through insurance collection as well as a weapon to be used as intimidation for organizing purposes or for eliminating business competitors."

As a result of the vast compilation of fire-fraud evidence by the Fire Underwriters, the Justice Dept. has launched a drive for inclusion of arson in a special law which would permit the FBI to go after the fire-for-hire merchants.

Mrs. David Charles Renaud

Miss Marilyn Lankheir of Charleston Becomes Bride of David Charles Renaud

CHARLESTON-- In one of the most beautiful weddings of the season, Miss Maryilyn Benjamen Lankheit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Lankheit, became the bride of David Charles Renaud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert Renaud, Route 2, Charleston, on Saturday, January 9, 1965 at 12:45 p.m. in St. Henry's Catholic Church. The acolytes were John Bledsoe, Ray Baudendistal, Douglas Simmons and Robert Uthoff, all cousins of the bride or groom.

The bride given in marriage by her father was lovely in a gown of white satin peau de soie. Her princess line styled bodice featured a bateau neckline edged with French cording and Alencon lace medallions were across the top. The long straight sleeves came to lily points over her hands. The floor length skirt was controlled with side fullness caught up in graceful pleats and overlaid with lace medallions. The fullness was repeated again in the center back and swept to a chapel train.

Her headdress was a double crown of pearls with crystal drops falling from each point. Attached to this was a hand rolled bouffant elbow length veil of imported English silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

Miss Alice Ann Lankheit served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the bride's two sisters, Misses Rosemary and Abigail Lankheit and Miss Cissy Ewing of Teutopolis, Ill.

The attendants dresses were identical floor length gowns of scarlet velvet with three-quarter length sleeves. The close fitting bodices featured renaissance neckline with a self fabric bow and streamers enhancing the back waist. Soft pleats encircled the waist forming a semi-controlled skirt. They wore rose caps with nose veils dyed to match their dresses and carried muffs adorned with red carnations.

Emma Jane Lankheit, sister of the bride and Mosemary Renaud, sister of the groom, served as flower girls. Robert Mark Renaud brother of the groom, served as ring bearer.

The bride's mother wore a purple wool suit, matching flowered hat, and black accessories. The mother of the groom wore a lime green suit with black accessories. Both mothers wore orchids.

Mr. Jesse S. Bledsoe, Sr. of New Madrid, grandfather of the bride and Mrs. Mary Lankheit the bride's grandmother and Mrs. Appie Renaud, the groom's grandmother were all present and wore white carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception and luncheon service and had white tapers in silver candle holders.

The luncheon table was centered with a white fenced in grass yard with an ivy twined trellis under which stood dolls dressed as bride and groom. this was the bride's center piece for her 16th birthday and was made by Mr. and Mrs. Linus Halter.

Receiving the guests at the guest register was the groom's sister, Miss Ann Renaud. Miss Mary Sue Renaud, sister of the groom and Miss Ann Rowe served punch. Mrs. Peter Rost of New Madrid, served the wedding cake.

Martha Renaud, sister of the groom, and Patti Ben and Carol Mason Rickard of Cape Girardeau, cousins of the bride, passed out red rice bags from white baskets.

Immediately following the reception the couple left for a trip to points of interest in Mississippi. For traveling the bride chose a midnight blue double knit suit with a silver mink collar and matching blue hat. She also wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet and black accessories. On their return they will be at home at 305 N. Virginia St. in Charleston.

Mrs. Renaud is a former graduate of St. Henry's High School and she also attended Fontbonne College in St. Louis. She is now employed by Citizens Bank. Mr. Renaud is also a graduate of St. Henry's. He has attended Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau and is now working with his father.

War on the one hand is such a terrible, such an atrocious, thing, that no man, especially no Christian man, has the right to assume the responsibility of beginning it.--Tolstoi.

HEART GUESTS

Joy never brings an extra shirt
When it comes to visit your heart;
Its visits are exciting, but brief;
It will kiss you and then depart.

But Contentment brings a whole trunk full;
So different are its ways:
It settles down in your favorite chair, and,
If you make it welcome--stays.

Chamberlain Has Thoughts Of Retiring After Season

Chamberlain Tells It Is Bad Deal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain might retire at the end of this National Basketball Association season, leaving the Philadelphia 76ers holding an empty money bag.

The 76 ers paid a reported $75,000 Wednesday night to the San Francisco Warriors for the 7-foot-1 scoring machine. Philadelphia threw in a reserve center-forward with a recent history of fainting spells, one of the shortest guards in the league and a forward who has yet to play his first NBA minute this season.

Superficially, this sounds worse than it actually is for the Warriors. But if Chamberlain plays only the three remaining months of the season and retires at the ripe young age of 28, it's a financial bath for the 76ers without the bubbles.

"I told him he made a bad deal," Chamberlain said Thursday about Philadelphia co-owner Ike Richman. "I'm not sure how long I'll play. "I take one year at a time," Chamberlain continued. "Right now, I'm not sure what I'll be doing next season."

Chamberlain said there were many reasons why he was considering retirement, but he didn't want to name them yet.

Richman, a close friend and lawyer of the highest paid NBA player, took an equally short sighted view from his Philadelphia law office.

"Wilt told me he would only talk about one year," said Richman. "That's all right with me.

"Let the future take care of itself, I know I have Chamberlain this year — definitely.

"I expect to have him for many more years. However, he has a right to do what he thinks is best for himself. And, when he makes that decision, when he wants to retire, we will always remain friends."

The Warriors play the New York Knicks in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium tonight without the services of two of their acquisitions and, perhaps, without the other.

Paul Neumann, the 6-foot-1 ex-Stanford star, said he might wait for the Warriors to come East. Lee Shaffer, who refused to play this season for the 76ers, definitely isn't in shape and probably won't be around. And Connie Dierking didn't appear for practice in San Francisco Thursday.

Chamberlain was given a week to rest, treat his broken nose and say goodby to friends in San Francisco. So the first game he plays for the 76ers could be against the Warriors.

Neumann, a hot-shooting guard, averaged 11.6 last season as a part-time player.

Shaffer, a 6-7 forward from North Carolina, averaged 13.1 last season and 18.6 the year before. Hannum said Shaffer could be one of the greatest players in the league but expressed some concern over his injured knee. They talked for hours last Sunday with the 76ers' permission.

Dierking, a 6-9 graduate of Cincinnati, suffered fainting spells this season. Medical tests failed to show anything physically wrong with him.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife Thursday announced an experimental nine-day hunting season, primarily for taking of blue-winged teal, will be tried in the Central and Mississippi fly-ways in September.

The blue-wings are an early-migrating North American duck. Bulk of the blue-wings normally migrate before opening of the regular waterfowl hunting season and shooting pressure on them is light.

States in the two flyways include Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and others.

Bureau Director John Gottschalk said local information concerning specific season dates and other regulations will be announced by individual state fish and game departments.

CHICAGO AP -- H. B. Lee of Kansas State University is a new member of the NCAA Council's seven-man executive committee.

Lee and Robert F. Ray of Iowa named to the committee Thursday.

Lee replaces Arthur C. Londborg of Kansas University, senior member of the committee. Ray fills a vancy created by resignation of Rev. Wilfred H. Crowley, formerly of Santa Clara.

Bulldogs Enter P. B. Tourney

Following a rugged schedule to remain above the 500 percent level the Bulldogs will enter the Poplar Bluff Tournament by playing second seeded Greenville Tuesday night.

Currently the Bulldogs have won four games and lost three. In conference play they are one and one.

Tournament action will begin Monday night when top seeded Poplar Bluff collides with Clearwater at 7:00. The second game will be between fourth seeded Doniphan and unseeded Malden.

The last of the opening round games will be played Tuesday night following the Sikeston-Greenville game when the third-seeded Kennett Indians clash with the Fisk Pirates.

After Tuesday night's games, action will lapse until Friday when the winners of first round games collide. The Monday night victors collide at 7:00 and Tuesday night victors collide at 8:30. There will be no consolation bracket for first round losers.

Before the Bulldog crew can think about tourney play they must reckon with a pair of formidable foes. Tonight they face Charleston and tomorrow night Caruthersville comes visiting.

Currently the Dogs are in fourth place in the SEMO conference. Like the Varsity, the "B" team is sporting a one and one conference record and they hold down the number four spot. Unlike the Varsity, the Bullpups are in the midst of a two game losing streak. They won their first three games to give them a three and two seasonal mark.

Poplar Bluff is at the helm in both the Varsity and "B" team brackets. Here is how they currently stand prior to tonight's games.

One More Game To Be Played

HOUSTON (AP) — The football season isn't over yet. Always time for one more. The floating All-Star game of the American Football League will be played Saturday at Jeppesen Stadium. Already they are dreaming up games to lengthen next season.

The AFL is considering a proposal to add a new game in early August at New York's Shea Stadium between the league champion Buffalo Bills and the AFL All-Stars.

Since Ralph Wilson, owner of the Bills, and Sonny Werblin, the New York Jet owner who distributes $400,000 bonus checks, both are in favor of the game — its chances are good. The league will take action later this week.

There will be no conflict between this game and the All-America game among pro rookies in Buffalo June 27 or the College All-Star game in Chicago Aug. 6.

In the Chicago game the National Football League champion Cleveland Browns play rookie all-stars from both leagues.

If the AFL goes along with the new game it will upset the training plans of its clubs. Each team would have to give up a number of regulars to form an all-star team just a few days before the exhibition season starts.

In the meantime, the two teams for Saturday's transplanted game are down to a one-a-day practice session after a series of double workouts.

The Chicago Black Hawks didn't win. But they didn't lose either, and their 0-0 deadlock with the Toronto Maple Leafs widened the Hawks' National Hockey League lead to two points over idle Montreal.

The tie game, only league action scheduled Wednesday night, moved the third-place Leafs to within three points of the Canadiens. The standoff was the league's first since Nov. 30, 1963.

BRUSSELS (AP) -- Belgium's Aurele Vandendriessche, winner of the Boston Marathon for the last two years, said he will run again in the race April 17.

League To Remain With Eight Teams

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Football League will remain an eight-team league in 1965 and probably for at least two more years although it has scheduled an expansion meeting to consider 38 applications this year.

Commissioner Joe Foss said Thursday the AFL will investigate the various groups applying for franchises and then make up its mind when and if it wants to add any new clubs.

Foss said nine groups from Philadelphia, five from Atlanta, four each from Washington and Chicago, three from Milwaukee and two from Los Angeles have made inquiries. He also had heard from would-be owners in Miami, New Orleans, Birmingham, Seattle, Portland, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Although Foss declined to name names he did reveal he had spoken to Arthur Allyn, owner of the Chicago White Sox, earlier this week in Chicago. Allyn would like to put an AFL franchise in Comiskey Park.

All league owners assured Foss they expected to stand pat in their present cities at least through 1965. Anaheim, Calif., new home of the Los Angeles Angels, has been making a strong pitch for San Diego and there are rumors that Denver eventually might be headed toward Philadelphia.

Under the terms of a new five-year $36-million television contract with the National Broadcasting Co., it is reported each team will get $750,000 in 1965, $800,000 in 1966, $850,000 in 1967, $900,000 in 1968, and $950,000 in 1969. There is an additional $2-million expansion fund that probably would be split among new franchises. That fund could provide $500,000 for each of two new clubs in 1968 and 1969 but lesser amounts if spread over more than two years.

Under the new television setup, an attempt will be made to screen most of the teams' road games in the home city. The league will operate once more on a 15-week schedule adding an extra week by alloting open dates as it did last season. Milt Woodard, assistant commissioner, has the job of making up the schedule.

ST. LOUIS (AP) -- The St. Louis Cardinal's drive to a National League pennant and the 1964 world championship resulted in a profit of $147,951 after taxes, General Manager Bob Howsam announced Thursday night.

LAWRENCE AP -- Missouri's freshman basketball team held 16-point leads several times in the final half and beat the Kansas freshmen 74-66 Saturday night.

Dave Bennett sparked a surge that gave Missouri a 38-25 lead at the half and he was the Tiger high-pointer with 19. Willie Lee and Tim Marting had 13 apiece. John Carter led Kansas with 19 and George Yarnevich 17.

The victory gave the Missouri freshmen a 2-1 record and it was the first loss for the Kansans in three games.

Born through fire but cool as a cucumber

It all started in Tullahoma. Back before 1870. In the Highland Rim country of Tennessee. When George Dickel brought his very first wagonload of hard sugar maple and fired it into char. When he mellowed up his whisky by filtering it through 6200 pounds of this char, he'd say his whisky was "born through fire." Because the char and the barreling took out the wild-fire, folks would say Mr. Dickel's Tennessee Sour Mash Drinkin' Whisky was "cool as a cucumber."

Still is.

Rate of Aging In Women Decreasing

It appears that nature, without artificial assistance, has contrived to bless womanhood with a longer period of "endocrinologic youth," according to an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The editorial referred to a recent report that, in the decade before 1961, the median age of menopause of women in Great Britain was 50.1 years.

This represents an increase of about four years in the age of menopause compared with that of a century ago, the editorial said, and this trend has occurred in most European countries since the last century.

"Analysis of early literature suggests that approximately 40 years was the mean age of menopause in ancient times, and approximately 45 years between 1500 and 1800," the editorial continued.

"These findings are particularly significant in view of the fact that today adolescence occurs at a much earlier age than in the last century.

"This combination of an earlier age of menarche. . . and a later age of menopause provides material for cheerful speculation. It is possible that these changes connote a decreased rate of 'physiological degeneration,' that is, a decreased rate of aging in women in recent decades."

There is no certain explanation for these changes, although better nutrition and improved environmental conditions may play important roles, the editorial added.

Arizona contains eight national forests covering some 11.5 million acres.

Mr. and Mrs. James Monroe Malugen

Miss Carolyn Ferrell and Mr. Malugen Exchange Vows

CHARLESTON -- In a lovely wedding at her parents home on North Main Road, Miss Carolyn Sue Ferrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferrell, became the bride of James Monroe Malugen, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Malugen of Potosi, Mo. The wedding was solemnized Sunday January 10, 1965 at 5:00 p.m. with Bro. George Huffstutter performing the double ring ceremony.

The young people pledged their vows before an arch of 14 lighted tapers in front of the fireplace in the living room. Tall white urns on each side of the fireplace held arrangements of white mums and greenery. On the piano was an arrangement of more candles and leather leaf fern.

Mrs. Moffat Latimer played for Miss Cathy Cook who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer." She also played the traditional wedding march.

The bride given in Marriage by her father, wore a sleeveless costume sheath dress with a queens collar and a matching coat of white satin rose-point brocade. The coat was A-line and had bracelet length sleeves. Her head piece of white silk flowers embroidered with seed pearls and crystals held her bouffant silk illusion shoulder length veil. She carried two white orchids on a white lace covered Bible.

Mrs. Buddy Russell served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a two piece outfit with a dark green velvet skirt and a gold brocade sleeveless top. She wore a dark green velvet Dior bow for her headpiece and her flowers were white roses.

Wayne Malugen, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The brides mother wore a three piece suit of gold brocade with matching gold accessories. She wore a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

The groom's mother wore navy blue silk with matching accessories and a white orchid. A guest of honor, the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Earl Ferrell, wore white gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held. White mums and white pom poms in a silver bowl were used as the central decoration for the refreshment table, which had an over drape of white silk net over white linen. The overdrape was caught at each corner with greenery.

Mrs. Clifford Brumley, the brides aunt served punch and coffee. Mrs. Junior Malugen, the groom's sister-in-law, served the wedding cake. The cake was in three tiers, topped with a white sugar bell and lily of the valley on a white satin heart edged in pearls.

Miss Lynda Dobbs of Bowling Green, Ky., presided at the guest register.

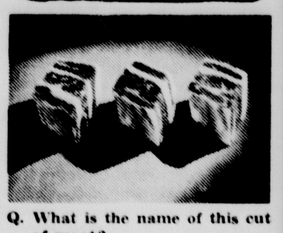

After the reception the bride and bridegroom left for their home in Cape Girardeau. For travel she wore an all white wool suit and a white orchid corsage at her shoulder. Mrs. Malugen is a graduate of Charleston High School and of the Taylor - Ferrell Beauty School at Sikeston. Mr. Malugen is attending Southeast Missouri State College in Cape.

Among the out of town guests were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Malugen, his brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Malugen, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Malugen all of Potosi, Mo. Also from Potosi were Dr. and Mrs. Edward Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cole. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Taylor, Sikeston. Mrs. Norman Eifert, Bertrand, Mo. Dale Trude and Lynda Dobbs of Bowling Green, Ky. and Earl Ferrell, Sikeston, Mo.

MEAT COOKERY Quiz

Q. What is the name of this cut of meat?

A. Beef short ribs.

Q. Where do they come from? How are they identified?

A. They come from the ends of the ribs. They can be identified by their square look and the alternating layers of fat and lean of which they are composed.

Q. How are they prepared?

A. By braising. This means brown well on all sides in their own fat. Cover and and cook slowly 1 hour. Pour off the drippings. Season with salt and pepper and other seasonings, if desired. Add a small amount of water or other liquid. Cover tightly and continue cooking until tender, approximately 1 hour.

Taste Appeal Accents Beef Short Ribs

Few meat cuts have more savory, old-fashioned appeal than beef short ribs.

They can be varied to serve in many ways, with vegetables, dried fruits, barbecued or spiced. One seasonal variation certain to please is to serve the beef short ribs with sauerkraut.

Short ribs are cut from the ends of the ribs, explains Reba Staggs, widely known meat authority and they contain a section of flat rib bone and alternating layers of lean and fat.

To develop their flavor fully, brown the beef short ribs first. Then, simply add salt, pepper and a small amount of water and cook them, well covered. Sauerkraut is added for only long enough to heat through.

Build an attractive menu around the beef short ribs by serving creamed mixed vegetables, salt sticks, frozen fruit salad and brownies.

Beef Short Ribs with Sauerkraut

- 3 pounds beef short ribs
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings, if necessary
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup water
- 1 can (1 pound, 11 ounces) sauerkraut

Brown short ribs slowly on all sides in own fat or lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Add water, cover tightly and cook in a slow oven (300° F.) or simmer on top of range until tender 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender.

The bride - elect attends Sikeston senior high school.

The prospective bridegroom graduated with the class of 1961 from the Thomas W. Kelly high school. He is presently employed with the Canvas Products Company in Sikeston.

New Madrid County Extension Club Hold First Council Meeting

The New Madrid County extension clubs held their first council meeting of 1965 in the Lilbourn Methodist Church at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning, January 12th. The new officers were in their places: Mrs. Nelson Lumsden, president; Mrs. Henry Hulshof, vice-presidnet, and Mrs. Paul Trout, secretary-treasurer.

This is also the leader training meeting and after a short opening session the group divided into various seminars. Miss Grace Klenn of the state office in Columbia met with club presidents, Mrs. Jas. Roth with vice-presidents, and Mrs. Henry Hulshof with secretaries, treasurers, and reporters. Someone from each seminar reported to the whole group after the pot-luck luncheon.

Mrs. Freddie Lawrence for the presidents spoke of the importance of having the qualities of leadership and developing these qualities in others. The president should be sure meetings are planned, get the co-operation of members, and start promptly.

Mrs. Roth stressed the importance of the vice-president by comparing her to the position of the wife in a family. She should keep in touch with the whole situation so that she may lend a hand wherever needed. Specifically she is responsible for the program.

Mrs. W. O. Burnett, for the secretaries and reporters brought out the difference between minutes and a newspaper report. Minutes should record the details of business such as motions, votes, and bills, while a newspaper report should bring out matters of general interest and importance, always remembering that "extension" is the extenxion of the University of Missouri, and special emphasis should be placed on the educational aspects of programs.

Representatives from the clubs reported on their year's work.

Mrs. Harland Gilmer, from the LaForge club told of their work with the residents of the Sells Nursing Home in Matthews. Mrs. Charles Lindley of the Matthews club was happy to report that the Matthews community building had been paid for in 1964. Mrs. Travis Thomason of Phillips told of their making a community building out of an abandoned sch... lot of help from t... W. H. Ice described the new block building the Hurricane Ridge club has built. Mrs. Fred Lasters of the Canalou club told of the scholarship to Cape State College which that club provides. Mrs. Henry Hulshof of Town and Country said they had had all the lessons and found the ones on freezing foods and preparing convenience foods, and the program on international relations especially helpful. Mrs. Paul McClure of East Gideon said they had found particular interest in their health lessons. Mrs. Jim Gilmer of New Hope also stressed health and said they had had 100 per cent response in the use of diabetic strips. Mrs. Freddie Lawrence of Kewanee spoke of the fine backing to 4-H work given by their club and said they are making curtains for the school.

Miss Klenn was the featured speaker. By the use of posters and comments thereon she showed that the resources of the University of Missouri are availavle to all the people of the state. "The State is the Campus", "Four Campuses-Columbia, Rolla, St. Louis, Kansas City", "Functions-Residence Teaching, Research, Extension Teaching", "Areas of Program Emphasis - Agriculture, Business, etc-", and "Youth Development."

Certificates of Accomplishment for the past year were presented to the following: La Forge, Kewanee, Canalou, New Hope, Matthews, Town and Country, and East Gideon.

Delicate Flavor Of Veal Enhanced By Spicy Sauce

Frequently sauces are served with mildly flavored meats to enhance the meat flavor.

In the case of barbecued veal cutlets, the sauce is not only served with the meat, but it also provides the braising liquid used for cooking.

To serve six people, points out Reba Staggs, meat authority, purchase two veal round steaks to be cut into servings for each of them. Brown the cutlets first, then add pungent seasonings like soy sauce, catchup and Worcestershire sauce to make the barbecue sauce.

Barbecued Veal Cutlets

- 2 veal round steaks, cut ¾-inch thick
- ¼ cup lard or drippings
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 3 tablespoons catchup
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 garlic clove, finely chopped

Cut veal round steaks into 6 servings. Brown cutlets slowly in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Combine remaining ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Pour sauce over cutlets. Cover tightly and cook slowly 45 minutes to 1 hour or until done. 6 servings.

It was in May, several years ago that Mildred moved next door. That was a break for Eric. It is so easy to get acquainted with one's neighbors.

The first date naturally called for careful strategy. You don't want to seem too eager — but you want to know what she likes . . . and what she's like. Eric's and Mildred's first date was a Youth Fellowship supper at the church.

Eric happens to be a leader of this group. And Mildred happens to be an earnest Christian girl.

Of course, happens is a very broad word. It means that Eric's and Mildred's parents had once decided that a son or a daughter ought to be given the advantage of religious training.

Now Eric and Mildred are engaged. And everybody says they were meant for each other. And the altar before which they take their vows will be the heart of the religious life of their family. Thus it happens!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

"A Citizen Wherever We Serve"

ANN LANDERS

Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am so ashamed of my problem I can't discuss it with anyone. My husband is 40. We have three children. Every evening my husband races the kids to the bathtub and uses all the hot water. He likes to sit in the tub and let the water run -- leaving the drain open. He says he enjoys the "waves" created by the running water. I wouldn't swear to it but I think he floats the baby's rubber duck.

When the kids take their baths I have to heat water on the stove and carry it upstairs, which is a lot of bother. I've asked my husband to be more considerate of me and the children but he sulks and refuses to answer.

Is there a solution to this? -- STUMPED

Dear Stumped: You need a larger water heater -- and you need it now. Put this on the top of your "must have" list and cut corners elsewhere to get it if necessary.

A 40-year-old man who is still playing with rubber ducks is not likely to approach any problem in a mature manner, so work it out alone.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been playing bridge with a certain couple for over 12 years. They are superb bridge players and so are we. The four of us are serious players and there is very little social chatter or foolishness. We have a set game every Thursday night and when we play cards we mean business. It is not uncommon for $40 or $50 to change hands in an evening.

A few days ago I learned that this couple had an elegant dinner party at their club. More than 40 couples were present. My husband and I were not invited. I am deeply hurt.

Shall I tell them at our next card game that if we aren't good enough to be invited to their parties we aren't good enough to play cards with them?--GRAND SLAM

Dear Grand: The answer is in your letter. You said, "When we play cards we mean business." Well, THEY mean business, too, and that's what the relationship means to them.

If you enjoy matching skills with this couple, continue to play cards with them but recognize the fact that you are not social friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Am I mentally ill or what? Whenever I see my family coming up the walk to visit me I want to run to the back of the house and hide. I know it isn't right to feel this way about a mother and two sisters but I do. My husband's family, on the other hand, is wonderful. I love them and they love me.

My childhood memories are nightmarish. There was always a fight at our dinner table. My sisters were mean to me and I hated them. They wore my clothes, took money out of my purse and made me do their work. I left home at 16 and only then did I find peace of mind.

Now that we are all grown and married, I know these feelings should be cast aside, but they still haunt me. I get physically ill when I am around these relatives. What is the solution? -- -B. D. F.

Dear B. D. F.: Understanding and forgiving are marks of maturity. If you have been unable to conquer your hostility, stop pretending and stop feeling guilty.

Many people dislike their relatives -- often justifiably. To feel one way and behave another way is what makes people sick. See as little of the clan as possible. When you can deal more honestly with your relatives they will not make you ill.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

REFUGEES AGAIN -- A U. S. Army hellicopter unloads a group of flood refugees in a rainstorm at Fortuna, Calif., as a massive airlift from the Eel River valley gets under way. These refugees, residents of the farming community of Shively, 40 miles south of Fortuna, had just returned to their homes when a new flood warning, the second in less than a month, was issued.

Study Shows Suicide Rates Unaffected By Joblessness

Unemployment, at least in the past decade, has not been an important factor in the causation of suicide, a study indicated today.

Suicide rates for the years 1954-1961 in 13 principal labor market areas of Pennsylvania were compared with unemployment rates in the same period.

In spite of wide differences between areas in average unemployment rates, there was no evidence of corresponding variation in suicide rates of either men or women, either for the ages 15 to 84 or for the more limited age range of 35 to 64.

The study was reported by Bonnie Walbran, B. A., and Brian MacMahon, M.D., Harvard University School of Public Health, Boston, and Albert E. Bailey, Ph.D., Department of Health, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, in the Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association.

In Altoona in 1958 unemployment was at one of its highest levels and the suicide rate for men aged 35 to 64 was at its lowest, the study revealed. Lancaster had its highest suicide rate in 1956 when the percentage of unemployed was at its lowest. In Erie, the percentage of unemployed in 1956-1957 was well below the eight - year average, but the suicide rate was at its highest.

Between 1957 and 1958 the per cent of unemployed doubled, or almost doubled, in six of these areas. In two, the suicide rate increased, in three it decreased, and in one it stayed virtually constant.

Although previous studies have shown that the percentage of unemployed is much higher among persons committing suicide than among the related general population, the researchers said they were inclined to believe, on the basis of the Pennsylvania study, that the high proportion of unemployed among suicide victims results from a social or occupational "drift" associated with characteristics of the impending suicide syndrome.

Other studies have also shown a marked correlation existing between male suicide and unemployment rates during the past four decades. Regarding this the researchers commented:

"It may be that this correlation results from correlation of both variables with one or more of the many other social variables that fluctuate in response to economic circumstances.

"On the other hand, it may be that very marked fluctuations in employment rates, such as occurred during the 1930's and 1940's, may indeed be causally associated with suicide in males, but that the type of fluctuation that has occurred more recently, being smaller in degree and buffered by improved social security arrangements, may not be associated with changes in suicide risk."

The whole teacher-training curriculum has been frozen into law in many states. These are certification requirements, and if you will examine them you will find that many are the icicles of the old system of pedagogy. And behind these laws stands a militant organization with branches in every state and elaborate headquarters in Washington. The solution to the problem of an adequate number of properly trained, competent teachers in the universities lies first in the change of the curriculum for the training of high school teachers.

EMPTY DOG HOUSE

This empty dog house is a tragic thing,
Where once so much of love watched over me . . .
He died last night, our old and faithful dog --
We buried him today beneath that tree.

They say he had outlived his useful days;
But joy vibrated in his festive bark --
And I believe I'll hear its echo ring,
When I pass Heaven's locked gate in the dark.

"Package" Boilers Economical, Efficient

Here's a heating deal to get hot on.

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau reports that the modern, compact hydronic (hot water) heating boiler is available today as a complete package, including controls, circulating pump, accessories, tank, piping and wiring connections when you buy it. According to the Bureau, there are several advantages involved.

First is cost. A standardized, factory-engineered and assembled product means less on-site labor, consequently less installation expense.

Job management is simplified. The contractor has fewer parts to order, check and handle. Material losses are reduced. Light-weight packages require fewer men to handle the boiler.

And they're versatile. Compactness permits flexibility of location not possible with built-up systems.

Greater operating efficiency is assured, too. Close-coupled components, short piping runs, integrated control systems and wiring contribute to reduced operating and maintenance cost.

Persons planning to build soon are advised to discuss the advantages of a package boiler with an experienced heating contractor. Package boilers can be used in modernization work as well as in new construction.

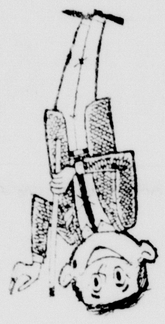

What sweet delight a quiet life affords.

Hundreds of Thousands Protected From Paralytic Polio by Vaccine

* Based on prevaccine (1951-54) average case rate and estimated U.S. pop., 1955-64

Tenth anniversary will be marked April 12, 1965 of the announcement that the Salk polio vaccine was "safe, potent and effective." Since that time hundreds of thousands of Americans have been spared from paralytic polio thanks to vaccine developed with financing entirely from the public through the March of Dimes. Today the March of Dimes organization fights against birth defects —a greater killer and crippler than polio ever was.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1929, the Senate ratified the Briand-Kellogg Treaty.

On this date

In 1559, the coronation of Queen Elizabeth I took place in Westminster Abbey.

In 1751, the first Georgia Provincial Assembly met at Savannah.

In 1899, the poem, "The Man With A Hoe," was first published.

In 1945, a supply route from India to China was completed to take the place of the Japanese-held Burma Road.

In 1946, the government appealed to farmers to produce more crops.

Ten years ago—Fifteen persons were killed in the collision of a TWA airliner and a private DC3 near Burlington, Ky.

Five years ago—The Supreme Soviet rubber-stamped a program by Premier Nikita Khrushchev to reduce Soviet armed forces.

One year ago—Panama asked for assurances that the United States was willing to renegotiate revision of the Panama Canal treaties as a condition for resuming diplomatic relations.

State Senate Wrangles But Adopts Rules

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's Senate wrangled for two hours over its rules and finally adopted them without much change.

Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, attacked the Committee on Economics but failed to muster enough support to do away with it and abandoned the effort finally.

He said the original purpose of the committee was to "stop the nut bills," such as veterans bonus proposals, but instead it had turned into a "stifling rules committee."

He said he thought the Senate itself had courage enough to "vote against such goofy measures as a soldiers' bonus."

Sen. Earl L. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, tried to change the rules so a majority of senators present would decide whether a bill should go to the 11-man Economics Committee. But he was voted down, 8-23, and after that the resistance collapsed.

Sen. John W. Joynt, D-St. Louis, president pro tem, said now that the rules are adopted, he plans to appoint the Senate committees next week so they can get down to business.

Reach for Grapefruit

Tartly - flavored, golden - skinned grapefruit may well be in the spotlight in fresh fruit bins during the next few weeks. While available all year, this colorful citrus is headed for its peak of supply, from now through May.

Although not one of the month's Plentiful Foods, as reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, grapefruit are coming to market in sizable numbers. The 1964-65 crop is forecast at more than 40 million boxes--25 per cent above last year and 2 per cent above average.

To be sure of taking home the best quality grapefruit from this supply, USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service recommends choosing fruit that is firm but springy to the touch, well-shaped and heavy for its size. Heavy, relatively smooth grapefruit usually are thin - skinned and juicy.

Soft, wilted, flabby or excessively lightweight fruit usually are undesirable. But, general surface defects (scale, scars, scratches, discoloration) do not affect edible quality. Thus these are minor considerations.

To avoid thick-skinned grapefruit, beware of a fruit which is somewhat pointed at the stem end and has rough, ridged or wrinkled skin.

Once home, keep grapefruit at cool room temperature -- 60 to 70 degrees. If refrigerated, they should be used within a week.

Most of the applicants, she said, are high school dropouts who see the Job Corps as a way of correcting a mistake. The corps is open to youngsters between 16 and 21 who are out of school and can't find a job.

The corps houses, clothes and feeds them and gives them $30 a month spending money during the training period which may last a year. An additional $50 a month is put aside for the corpsmen to be paid when training is finished.

Mrs. Pines said preliminary plans called for the corpsmen to be trained in conservation, forestry and carpentry.

She said Job Corps cadre will be looking for leaders among the first 30, which in addition to the Baltimore boys includes youths from Lecher County, Ky., and Wise County, Va.

"Women the world over seek beauty, and Africa is no exception, as most of the women apply a paste over their face, which after it dries tends to make their skin soft and more beautiful. I tried this once, but I failed to see any difference in my facial beauty. The Portuguese are trying to educate their people, but the natives are opposed to it, because the women now do all the work. The men buy their wives and pay as much as 20 cows for one, and I found one man who bought ten wives."

"Don't ever climb a tree in Africa when looking for wild animals as an elephant can either pull it out of the ground, or push it over. All they want are the leaves out of the top branches."

The living conditions, as told by Miss Duncan, in the southern and western coast line are better than many points in Europe, as 70 per cent of the gold in the world is mined there, as well as a large part of the diamonds.

"There is a section down there that raises small black sheep, for the purpose of making extra quality articles of clothing. The wool must be picked two days after birth, or else the wool will uncurl and the article ruined.

"The Congo section was deemed as the most crucial part of the continent, as in Angola more than 1,000 whites were killed by followers of Mumumba, as well as 10,000 negroes. I learned that Tshombie is well liked in the country.

"When I visited Dr. Schweitzer, I found that the hospital had over 500 patients and 45 nurses. Most of the people work without pay. The doctor is a wonderful man in spite of 90 years today, and he is interested in all world affairs. He trained 13 young gorillas for pets, and now most of them are in zoos. I had one meal that consisted of crocodile meat, but I can't say I enjoyed it."

"My advice to all of you is that if you wish to visit Africa, to get a round trip ticket, and bypass the Congo section."

Maple Fact

From 30 to 50 gallons of sap are required to yield one gallon of maple syrup. Maple syrup is one of the few crops produced solely in North America and is one of the oldest, having been produced by Indians of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River regions prior to the arrival of white settlers. It is produced in commercial quantities in Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota and West Virginia.

FOUR KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

Two Women Patients Perish in Fire at Hospital in St. Louis

Smoke Caused Deaths

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A brief, but blistering general alarm fire killed two women patients Thursday night at the state mental hospital. More than 1,000 other patients were threatened but quick work by firemen and others prevented greater tragedy.

About 1,200 patients, some in wheelchairs, were removed into sub-freezing temperatures from a women's dormitory in a nearby auditorium. Most of them wore only night clothes and were barefoot, although some managed to drape blankets around them. A majority of the patients were evacuated within 30-minutes after the blaze was discovered.

The first alarm sounded at 9:22 p.m. (cst) in the long, rambling, old five-story brick building, which is almost 100 years old.

The blaze broke out in a linen closet on the third floor of the dormitory and spread rapidly through a room with nine beds into a hallway. Cause of the fire and an estimate of the damage were not immediately determined.

Firemen at a nearby station house have long familiarized themselves with the buildings of the sprawling South St. Louis hospital complex for such an emergency. The complex houses about 2,600 patients and covers almost nine city blocks.

Assistant Fire Chief Robert Olsen said the fire was so hot that it held the firemen back for a few moments, despite their masks and protective fire suits. But once they caught up with the blaze in the hallway, they put it out almost immediately.

One fireman suffered a minor case of smoke inhalation.

The dead were identified as Miss Brenda Robinson, 19, and Mrs. Ruth Lucks, 62. Both apparently were victims of smoke inhalation, authorities said.

After the fire was out, most of the patients returned to wards in the wing that were not damaged. Others were housed in the gym, cafeteria, canteens and corridors with cots and blankets supplied by the Red Cross.

About 150 students nurses in training at the hospital from all over the state had staged a practice fire drill in the building only hours before the blaze broke out.

The students were off duty, but a spokesman said they rushed to the building and aided in the evacuation.

Visit Africa But Stay out of Congo Shirley Duncan Tells Bootheel Dinner Club

Miss Shirley Duncan, writer and world traveler, of Melbourne, Australia, told Bootheel Dinner Club guests last night at the Holiday Inn to take a long African journey, but by all means stay out of the Congo.

Present were around 250 dinner guests of the almost 300 members, as announced by Chairman Alex Klein, who informed the members that an additional 23 members joined to bring the membership to capacity, due to lack of seating arrangements in this city. Mrs. Bess Copeland, Kewanee, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boyer, were awarded the two table decoration floral sprays.

Miss Duncan, made a tour that began in Paris, and circled the entire African continent on a two-year journey, that took her to every country along the east and west coast, including a long stay with Dr. Albert Schweitzer in his Gabon territory hospital, located on the equator.

"I didn't expect to be gone so long on this journey," she said. "But the time it takes to get a visa for every small and large country on this continent, and the high cost of living for tourists, as well as slow travel, made it necessary. Modern hotel rooms often went as high as $17.50 per day, but my sideline writings and other work made it possible for me to earn a portion of my trip."

Her trip through Egypt and the Pyramids was among her highlights. "In spite of the many faults of President Nasser, conditions there are very progressive. It takes 30 minutes to climb to the top of the Pyramids, which has many passages inside, but all the treasures are many mummies. The necklace I am wearing is said to be over 3,000 years old."

"The growth of that country is now tremendous due to the building of the Aswan Dam, and a temple is now being rebuilt that should cost $40 million dollars."

She explained that Africa is divided between two types of people, the Arabs of the north, and the negroes of the south, and as a result there are many conflicts, because of the anti-white feeling, which is ten times as great as in the USA, according to Miss Duncan.

"Make no mistake about it, few journalists are ever permitted to return to that country, because they are very critical of some of the stories written about their country. Contraty to belief, only a few animals are to be seen on a trip, but if one will take side trips of several hundred miles you can see them." When she asked if the lions are vicious, she was told, "When you approach any type of a bush, always head for the sunny side, as they usually are found lying on the shady side."

The audience was informed never get in the way of an elephant, because they are light-footed and can be close to you without being heard, and therefore are always given the right-of-way. "This bracelet I have on was made from the few hair found on an elephant's tail. The eastern section of the continent around Leopoldville is going through a crime wave, and I had my purse snatched the day I arrived."

She was highly pleased with Zanzibar and the Mombosa section, and "I was there when Prince Philip was there on the day they were given their independence. Unfortunately the natives live from day to day and are not interested in the future. The Portuguese east coast is a friendly place, and the people are both friendly

Predicts Tax On Trucks to Pay Cost

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., predicted higher taxes will be imposed on the trucking industry to pay the extra cost of the interstate highway system.

"It is my opinion that the President and the administration will propose and send to Capitol Hill a bill calling for an increase in taxes for the trucking industry," he said.

"This naturally is going to make the truckers unhappy and the rails happy, but it's one of those things."

Randolph is a member of the Senate Public Works Committee and chairman of its subcommittee on roads. He made his comment in a talk Thursday to the annual convention of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri.

The 41,000-mile interstate highway network, scheduled for completion in 1972, originally was estimated to cost $41 billion; but with 19,000 miles completed the Commerce Department has put out a new estimate of $46.8 billion.

"We had all anticipated an increase, but not one of this magnitude," Randolph said.

Taxes on gasoline and tires earmarked for the interstate program have produced about a billion more than expected, the senator said, and that will absorb some of the extra cost. The trucking industry, he said, has suggested these taxes could be extended beyond their 1972 expiration date. He said another possibility is diverting the 10 per cent tax on new cars from the government's general funds into the special highway fund. He said the new car tax produces about two billion a year.

Much of a firm's business is conducted over the telephone and every one needs refresher courses in telephone voice and manners. To present a talk on this subject will be Mrs. Ruby Blaine from the St. Louis office of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Miss Almaretta Sidwell and Mrs. Joan Grant from the senior high school staff will present a discussion, with demonstrations, of many shortcuts and time saving procedures for an office.

The feature speaker will be Mrs. Jo Roush, a native of Eminence, Mo., and now a private secretary with Hoffman-Taff Chemical Co. in Springfield, Mo. In 1963 she was selected "secretary of the day", which was sponsored by Chamber of Commerce of Springfield.

She has been chairman and sponsor of the Office Workers Seminar in Springfield. She is the former Missouri Division NSA president. Currently she is the Southwest District NSA representative on the International NSA Certified Professional Secretary Committee. And she is one of the 44 certified secretaries in Missouri. She attends many conferences, seminars, and conventions, not only in Missouri, but the Midwest.

Two Students do $1,205 Damage at Bloomfield High

BLOOMFIELD -- "We just wanted to get a longer vacation," was the explanation offered by one of two youths who are alleged to have admitted to setting fire to textbooks and other school supplies in the second and third floor corridors of the high school building Jan. 5.

According to Sheriff Temples, who apprehended and questioned the youths, one of them said they originally planned to let the air out of all the school bus tires but found the garage doors locked. They also told the sheriff a third boy "chickened out" when they started to break into the building.

Estimated damage to textbooks, reference books, school supplies and the cost of repairs to the walls and floors of the corridors was placed at $1205.50 Supt. Blankenship said Tuesday. The school district, the superintendent said, has no lawful authority to discipline the youths because their destructive acts were not committed during school hours.

Evidently the pair attempted to use a highly volatile fluid used for thinning duplicator ink and burn books and paper in a room next to the school principal's office. The evidence was found the following day.

A hearing will be held at the courthouse early next week with the juvenile officer present, Supt. Blankenship said.

Churchill Ill, and Confined To His Bed

LONDON (AP)-Sir Winston Churchill--90 and extremely feeble--was confined to bed at his London home today trying to throw off the effects of a cold. He has been ill for several days.

Though emphasizing that the illness gave no cause for alarm, a member of the Churchill family said that at Sir Winston's advanced age, any illness must be looked upon as serious.

"He's had a cold for several days," said Sir Winston's son, Randolph Churchill, from his country house at East Bergholt, Suffolk County.

Lord Moran, Sir Winston's private physician, said he would call at the home of Britain's great wartime leader late today.

After that visit-and a check-up--Lord Moran is expected to issue a medical bulletin on the health of his famous patient.

"He has his ups and downs. At his age every illness must be regarded as a serious one," Randolph said.

"This is a cold, however, and so far as I know, it's nothing more."

In the past, he has suffered a number of illnesses and had at least two strokes.

Invariably, he has bounced back, and birthday after birthday for the last five years or more, he has been able to totter to the ground-floor windows of his London home at Hyde Park Gate, smile and give his famous V-for-victory sign to well-wishers congregated outside.

Hearnes Appointed Four In Various State Offices

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reappointed Proctor N. Carter as State Welfare Director today and John D. Paulus Chief of Planning and acting Director of Public Buildings.

He also picked Philip V. Maher of Richmond Heights as his administrative assistant for urban affairs and to head the poverty program in Missouri.

The appointment of Austin Hill, former deputy secretary of state as Director of Public Health and Welfare was formally announced as expected.

Maher succeeds James Tice of Kansas City and Hill succeeds former Rep. Owen R. Jackson of Perry.

All the appointees are Democrats. Carter and Paulus are among the few survivors from the administration of former Gov. John M. Dalton. Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, highway patrol superintendent, is another.

Carter, 57, will be serving his sixth term as welfare director under five governors. He has shown uncanny ability in getting his appropriation requests approved by the legislature.

He was first appointed by the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in 1945 as administrator of the old Social Security Commission and became the first welfare director under the new constitution a year later. He has been reappointed by every governor since then.

He was assistant state relief administrator during the depression years and for six years was assistant administrator of the old Social Security Commission before joining the Army.

He served overseas in the military government program and emerged as a major. He has been welfare director since then.

He is a native of Doniphan but spent most of his boyhood in Columbia where his father, the late E. M. Carter, was secretary of the State Teachers Association more than 25 years.

He is married and the father of two sons.

Paulus, 55, is the first to serve as Chief of Planning. He is in charge of the state building program and is directly responsible to the governor.

His grandfather, father and brothers all have been Missouri architects. He got his architectural training at Washington University in St. Louis, his home town, at Harvard and at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He formerly worked for the National Park Service on plans for the St. Louis river front memorial. He was chief architect for the state park board and later director of the Bureau of Hospital Facilities in Missouri under the Hill-Burton program.

The appointment of Maher as administrative assistant for urban affairs fills a new job which Hearnes promised to set up in his speech to the legislature Wednesday and in his campaign.

Maher, 32, formerly was assistant St. Louis County counselor. In 1962 he was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee in the 2nd Congressional District.

In recent years he has been in private law practice. He is married and has a son and a daughter.

Hill, in addition to serving as health and welfare director, will be a liaison man between the governor's office and the legislature.

He and Hearnes served in the legislature together. Hill was a representative from Howard County eight years and served six years as chief clerk of the House.

Hill, 47, was born at Franklin and formerly lived in Columbia. He is married and the father of a daughter.

First Job Corps Camp is Opened in War on Poverty

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — The nation's first Job Corpsmen, the outriders in President Johnson's war on poverty, began training today at a mountain retreat that housed depression youth of the 1930s.

The pioneer group, which includes 11 Baltimoreans and 19 youngsters from Virginia and Kentucky, will occupy sturdy chestnut log cabins built 30 years ago by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The training site is in the isolated Catoctin Mountain National Park, about a mile from Camp David where two presidents frequently rested.

The youths will be sworn in at Baltimore City Hall and then will board a bus for the 60-mile trip.

Marion Pines, a 40-year-old Goucher College alumna who is in charge of recruiting in Baltimore, says her office has had at least 750 Job Corps applications in the last six weeks.

"I've never seen anything like it," Mrs. Pines says. "Enthusiasm? That's the understatement of the year."

She said when the nine Negroes and two whites were told they would make up the first group from Baltimore, "the kids couldn't believe it. It was

Two Men, Women, Victims

Four southeast Missouri residents were killed in a headon collision between two cars on Highway 25, two miles north of Kennett at 5:45 p.m. Thursday.

Dead are Leon Harper, 31, of Kennett and a passenger with him, Walter Wiseman, 56, also of Kennett; Mrs. Hazel Gales, 40, wife of Clarence Gales of Clarkton and a passenger with her, Mrs. Daisy Corrine Miller, 48, wife of Charles Miller, also of Clarkton.

The men were taken to the McDaniel Funeral Service, Kennett; Mrs. Gales to the Landes Funeral Home, Malden and Mrs. Miller to the Lentz Funeral Home, Kennett. Funeral arrangements for any of the victims had not been completed at noon.

According to the State Highway Patrol the Hopper car got on the wrong side of the highway and crashed into the Gales car head on.

The quadruple tragedy yesterday brought the total number of fatalities in the 14-county territory of Troop E to 11 as compared to only four during the similar period of 1964.

Disarmament Appeal Sent To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson sends Congress a special disarmament appeal today, asking that the work of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency be continued.

The agency, headed by William C. Foster, is responsible for formulating disarmament proposals, conducting international disarmament negotiations and directing research on disarmament problems.

The agency was created in September 1961, the first year of the Kennedy administration. Authority for its operation expires at the end of the present fiscal year, June 30.

Working closely with the State and Defense Departments, the disarmament agency has played a central role in negotiations with the Soviet Union and other countries.

These negotiations have been aimed at curbing the nuclear arms race and eventually bringing about a controlled and verified reduction of nuclear and military forces all over the world.

The present top priority of the Johnson administration in this field has been given to the negotiation of an agreement which would ban the spread of nuclear weapons beyond the five countries which now have or are in process of building them. The five are the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and Red China.

High priority also is given to expansion of the limited test-ban treaty, concluded in 1963, so that it would prohibit all types of weapons tests. This treaty, originally negotiated by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union, has been signed by 104 other countries, not including France and Red China.

It prohibits nuclear explosions in the atmosphere, outer space and underwater. A total ban also would prohibit underground tests. But so far the major nuclear powers have not been able to agree on how to police an underground test ban.

Both the test-ban objective and the hopes of a nonproliferation pact have been complicated greatly by Red China's entry into the nuclear arms race last October with the explosion of its first test bomb.

U.S. officials now say that before any new agreements in this field can be made wholly effective, some way will have to be found to bring the Red Chinese and the French into the picture.

They are not hopeful that this problem can be solved soon.

FOUR KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENT

Two Women Patients Perish in Fire at Hospital in St. Louis

Smoke Caused Deaths

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A brief, but blistering general alarm fire killed two women patients Thursday night at the state mental hospital. More than 1,000 other patients were threatened but quick work by firemen and others prevented greater tragedy.

About 1,200 patients, some in wheelchairs, were removed into sub-freezing temperatures from a women's dormitory in a nearby auditorium. Most of them wore only night clothes and were barefoot, although some managed to drape blankets around them. A majority of the patients were evacuated within 30-minutes after the blaze was discovered.

The first alarm sounded at 9:22 p.m. (cst) in the long, rambling, old five-story brick building, which is almost 100 years old.

The blaze broke out in a linen closet on the third floor of the dormitory and spread rapidly through a room with nine beds into a hallway. Cause of the fire and an estimate of the damage were not immediately determined.

Firemen at a nearby station house have long familiarized themselves with the buildings of the sprawling South St. Louis hospital complex for such an emergency. The complex houses about 2,600 patients and covers almost nine city blocks.

Assistant Fire Chief Robert Olsen said the fire was so hot that it held the firemen back for a few moments, despite their masks and protective fire suits. But once they caught up with the blaze in the hallway, they put it out almost immediately.

One fireman suffered a minor case of smoke inhalation.

The dead were identified as Miss Brenda Robinson, 19, and Mrs. Ruth Lucks, 62. Both apparently were victims of smoke inhalation, authorities said.

After the fire was out, most of the patients returned to wards in the wing that were not damaged. Others were housed in the gym, cafeteria, canteens and corridors with cots and blankets supplied by the Red Cross.

About 150 students nurses in training at the hospital from all over the state had staged a practice fire drill in the building only hours before the blaze broke out.

The students were off duty, but a spokesman said they rushed to the building and aided in the evacuation.

Visit Africa But Stay out of Congo Shirley Duncan Tells Bootheel Dinner Club

Miss Shirley Duncan, writer and world traveler, of Melbourne, Australia, told Bootheel Dinner Club guests last night at the Holiday Inn to take a long African journey, but by all means stay out of the Congo.

Present were around 250 dinner guests of the almost 300 members, as announced by Chairman Alex Klein, who informed the members that an additional 23 members joined to bring the membership to capacity, due to lack of seating arrangements in this city. Mrs. Bess Copeland, Kewanee, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Boyer, were awarded the two table decoration floral sprays.

Miss Duncan, made a tour that began in Paris, and circled the entire African continent on a two-year journey, that took her to every country along the east and west coast, including a long stay with Dr. Albert Schweitzer in his Gabon territory hospital, located on the equator.

"I didn't expect to be gone so long on this journey," she said. "But the time it takes to get a visa for every small and large country on this continent, and the high cost of living for tourists, as well as slow travel, made it necessary. Modern hotel rooms often went as high as $17.50 per day, but my sideline writings and other work made it possible for me to earn a portion of my trip."

Her trip through Egypt and the Pyramids was among her highlights. "In spite of the many faults of President Nasser, conditions there are very progressive. It takes 30 minutes to climb to the top of the Pyramids, which has many passages inside, but all the treasures are many mummies. The necklace I am wearing is said to be over 3,000 years old."

"The growth of that country is now tremendous due to the building of the Aswan Dam, and a temple is now being rebuilt that should cost $40 million dollars."

She explained that Africa is divided between two types of people, the Arabs of the north, and the negroes of the south, and as a result there are many conflicts, because of the anti-white feeling, which is ten times as great as in the USA, according to Miss Duncan.

"Make no mistake about it, few journalists are ever permitted to return to that country, because they are very critical of some of the stories written about their country. Contraty to belief, only a few animals are to be seen on a trip, but if one will take side trips of several hundred miles you can see them." When she asked if the lions are vicious, she was told, "When you approach any type of a bush, always head for the sunny side, as they usually are found lying on the shady side."

The audience was informed never get in the way of an elephant, because they are light-footed and can be close to you without being heard, and therefore are always given the right-of-way. "This bracelet I have on was made from the few hair found on an elephant's tail. The eastern section of the continent around Leopoldville is going through a crime wave, and I had my purse snatched the day I arrived."

She was highly pleased with Zanzibar and the Mombosa section, and "I was there when Prince Philip was there on the day they were given their independence. Unfortunately the natives live from day to day and are not interested in the future. The Portuguese east coast is a friendly place, and the people are both friendly

Hearnes Appointed Four In Various State Offices

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes reappointed Proctor N. Carter as State Welfare Director today and John D. Paulus Chief of Planning and acting Director of Public Buildings.

He also picked Philip V. Maher of Richmond Heights as his administrative assistant for urban affairs and to head the poverty program in Missouri.

The appointment of Austin Hill, former deputy secretary of state as Director of Public Health and Welfare was formally announced as expected.

Maher succeeds James Tice of Kansas City and Hill succeeds former Rep. Owen R. Jackson of Perry.

All the appointees are Democrats. Carter and Paulus are among the few survivors from the administration of former Gov. John M. Dalton. Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, highway patrol superintendent, is another.

Carter, 57, will be serving his sixth term as welfare director under five governors. He has shown uncanny ability in getting his appropriation requests approved by the legislature.

He was first appointed by the late Gov. Phil M. Donnelly in 1945 as administrator of the old Social Security Commission and became the first welfare director under the new constitution a year later. He has been reappointed by every governor since then.

He was assistant state relief administrator during the depression years and for six years was assistant administrator of the old Social Security Commission before joining the Army.

He served overseas in the military government program and emerged as a major. He has been welfare director since then.

He is a native of Doniphan but spent most of his boyhood in Columbia where his father, the late E. M. Carter, was secretary of the State Teachers Association more than 25 years.

He is married and the father of two sons.

Paulus, 55, is the first to serve as Chief of Planning. He is in charge of the state building program and is directly responsible to the governor.

His grandfather, father and brothers all have been Missouri architects. He got his architectural training at Washington University in St. Louis, his home town, at Harvard and at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He formerly worked for the National Park Service on plans for the St. Louis river front memorial. He was chief architect for the state park board and later director of the Bureau of Hospital Facilities in Missouri under the Hill-Burton program.

The appointment of Maher as administrative assistant for urban affairs fills a new job which Hearnes promised to set up in his speech to the legislature Wednesday and in his campaign.

Maher, 32, formerly was assistant St. Louis County counselor. In 1962 he was the unsuccessful Democratic nominee in the 2nd Congressional District.

In recent years he has been in private law practice. He is married and has a son and a daughter.

Hill, in addition to serving as health and welfare director, will be a liaison man between the governor's office and the legislature.

He and Hearnes served in the legislature together. Hill was a representative from Howard County eight years and served six years as chief clerk of the House.

Hill, 47, was born at Franklin and formerly lived in Columbia. He is married and the father of a daughter.

First Job Corps Camp is Opened in War on Poverty

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — The nation's first Job Corpsmen, the outriders in President Johnson's war on poverty, began training today at a mountain retreat that housed depression youth of the 1930s.

The pioneer group, which includes 11 Baltimoreans and 19 youngsters from Virginia and Kentucky, will occupy sturdy chestnut log cabins built 30 years ago by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

The training site is in the isolated Catoctin Mountain National Park, about a mile from Camp David where two presidents frequently rested.

The youths will be sworn in at Baltimore City Hall and then will board a bus for the 60-mile trip.

Marion Pines, a 40-year-old Goucher College alumna who is in charge of recruiting in Baltimore, says her office has had at least 750 Job Corps applications in the last six weeks.

"I've never seen anything like it," Mrs. Pines says. "Enthusiasm? That's the understatement of the year."

She said when the nine Negroes and two whites were told they would make up the first group from Baltimore, "the kids couldn't believe it. It was

Two Men, Women, Victims

Four southeast Missouri residents were killed in a headon collision between two cars on Highway 25, two miles north of Kennett at 5:45 p.m. Thursday.

Dead are Leon Harper, 31, of Kennett and a passenger with him, Walter Wiseman, 56, also of Kennett; Mrs. Hazel Gales, 40, wife of Clarence Gales of Clarkton and a passenger with her, Mrs. Daisy Corrine Miller, 48, wife of Charles Miller, also of Clarkton.

The men were taken to the McDaniel Funeral Service, Kennett; Mrs. Gales to the Landes Funeral Home, Malden and Mrs. Miller to the Lentz Funeral Home, Kennett. Funeral arrangements for any of the victims had not been completed at noon.

According to the State Highway Patrol the Hopper car got on the wrong side of the highway and crashed into the Gales car head on.

The quadruple tragedy yesterday brought the total number of fatalities in the 14-county territory of Troop E to 11 as compared to only four during the similar period of 1964.

Disarmament Appeal Sent To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson sends Congress a special disarmament appeal today, asking that the work of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency be continued.

The agency, headed by William C. Foster, is responsible for formulating disarmament proposals, conducting international disarmament negotiations and directing research on disarmament problems.

The agency was created in September 1961, the first year of the Kennedy administration. Authority for its operation expires at the end of the present fiscal year, June 30.

Working closely with the State and Defense Departments, the disarmament agency has played a central role in negotiations with the Soviet Union and other countries.

These negotiations have been aimed at curbing the nuclear arms race and eventually bringing about a controlled and verified reduction of nuclear and military forces all over the world.

The present top priority of the Johnson administration in this field has been given to the negotiation of an agreement which would ban the spread of nuclear weapons beyond the five countries which now have or are in process of building them. The five are the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France and Red China.

High priority also is given to expansion of the limited test-ban treaty, concluded in 1963, so that it would prohibit all types of weapons tests. This treaty, originally negotiated by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union, has been signed by 104 other countries, not including France and Red China.

It prohibits nuclear explosions in the atmosphere, outer space and underwater. A total ban also would prohibit underground tests. But so far the major nuclear powers have not been able to agree on how to police an underground test ban.

Both the test-ban objective and the hopes of a nonproliferation pact have been complicated greatly by Red China's entry into the nuclear arms race last October with the explosion of its first test bomb.

U.S. officials now say that before any new agreements in this field can be made wholly effective, some way will have to be found to bring the Red Chinese and the French into the picture.

They are not hopeful that this problem can be solved soon.

CALIFORNIA COURT HITS MACHINISTS UNION FOR POLITICAL SUPPRESSION

A California district Court of Appeals has hit a hard blow at the suppression of individual liberty by big monopoly unionism. The decision, on November 14, was in the widely-publicized "Expulsion" case. The union, International Association of Machinists, announced it will appeal the decision.

The case whirled around the Right to Work issue. Two workers at the Lockheed aircraft plant, both members of the machinists union, actively supported Right to Work legislation in the 1958 election. The men, Cecil C. Mitchell and John Mulgrew, were expelled by the union for "conduct unbecoming of union members." This was spelled out to mean that they had championed Right to Work while the union officials were denouncing it.

The two workers fought back for their freedom of speech. Various groups came to their aid. Funds were raised. Two outstanding lawyers, Edwin H. Franzen and William M. Miller, were employed. The California Committee for Voluntary Unionism and the Citizens Committee for Democracy in Labor Unions stayed behind the case through a lower court adverse decision and the long litigation of appeal.

The Appeals court held that the expulsion of the two workers by the union violated their freedom of speech and freedom of political activity. It noted significantly that coercion (through fear) of the entire union membership would result from the expulsions. The decision said in part: "Even though a member may keep his job when expelled, his expulsion causes him a detriment, the apprehension of which would have a coercive effect on the membership . . . Also he has a financial stake in the strike funds, perhaps a pension fund and other funds toward which he had contributed. Further, he is denied the right to participate in his union 'government.'" The decision also said: "Expulsion cannot serve to quiet the individual. It can serve only to quiet those who remain. . . The question is whether the community should tolerate that result . . . If this were the case we would be deprived of an immeasurably important source of political thought."

We hope that Governor Hearnes and the 1965 Missouri Legislature will enact the following:

MEDICAL CARE FOR THE AGED. -- At the last session of the Legislature, Missouri set up a medical care program for aged welfare recipients. The program called for $6,000,000 in Federal matching funds under the Kerr-Mills Act.

We urge review of that program for economy and efficiency and, in event of a favorable report, extension of benefits and expansion of recipients to include the "near needy" who we excluded only by a gubernatorial veto.

WHILE THERE'S LIFE

In the biography Bob Hope furnished Who's Who in America appears the modest line: "Entertained Service Forces, overseas, 1945." Actually Bob Hope and his troupe took off last month on their 24th annual visit to military outposts. Highlights of the tour, which included stops in Korea, Thailand, South Viet Nam, the Philippines, and Guam, will be shown on NBC-TV on Friday, Jan. 15.

Hope's constant companion on these Christmas jaunts has been Jerry Colonna. Les Brown and his band have missed only one. And Hope has always managed to round up a bevy of brave beauties. This trip was Anita Bryant's fifth.

The Hope troupe arrived in Saigon just minutes after the bombing of officers' quarters on Christmas Eve. They played to artillery accompaniment at the helicopter base at Vinh Long. "Well," said Hope, "We came over where the action is. We got a little more than expected, but that's okay."

The company played to more than 20,000 -- their biggest audience ever -- in Clark Air Force Base's Bamboo Bowl in the Philippines. Bob himself suffered second - degree sunburn of the lower lip.

During World War II and the Korean hostilities stage and screen stars vied with each other to entertain the troops. Katherine Cornell and Brian Aherne put on The Barrets of Wimpole Street wherever they could find an undemolished theatre. Lunt and Fontanne played uninterrupted during air raids. Marlene Dietrich sang Lili Marlene at Army service camps and accompanied herself on the musical saw.

The people of show biz played the G. I. circuit with real grace and considerable courage. But now, according to George Jessel, who returned in late December from a tour of classified installations in Europe, the troops are starved for entertainment.

While there's life -- and soldiers -- there's Hope. Which makes pretty prophetic Thomas Fuller, who wrote years ago, "Hope is worth any money."

"Just a moment," said the little lady, "I'll have to discuss this with my sister."

IT FIGURES

A scientist has worked out a quick way to determine whether you are too fat. Dr. Norman B. Marshall, metabolic researcher for a drug firm, says to forget about pounds and use this formula:

Calculate your height in inches, then subtract your waistline measurement. Marshall says a difference of 36 is normal, 38 indicates a tendency toward leanness, and 33 or less indicates obesity.

Men, he says, should use the formula with their shoes on, women with their shoes off. Also, he added, for women it should be done with girdles off, and exhaling.

When a husband is intemperate is it usually a nagging wife who has driven him to drink?

No, says the Catholic Digest. "The type of woman who will drive her husband to drink" has no being in fact. They found that the personality types of wives of temperate husbands were no different from those of alcoholics.

5734-B LOVES 6128-G

It apparently started at a Yale University dance, where of yore the girls from nearby women's colleges would flutter hopefully onto the campus to be met by an uneasy stag line of undergraduates to begin the awkward, uncertain process of pairing off.

At a recent dance, however, each girl was directed immediately to her date, who had been chosen earlier by questionaires and a computer sorting device, as had she.

It was reportedly the most efficiently mixed mixer ever. Tall girls found tall boys; political sentiments were matched to like sentiments; good dancers found girls to whom that was important; intellectuals were introduced to intellectuals, and so on.

Then Purdue University used a computer to select "perfect dates" for a dance.

A similar procedure was tried at the University of Cincinnati, and at Michigan State University.

Sentimental types who are saddened by this mechanization of romance can take solace from the fact that these computerized affairs were not entirely successful.

For one thing, no machine is better than the information put into it and at Yale, at any rate, this resulted in a few cases of male disillusionment.

It seems that the only physical statistic on the girls' questionaires concerned height. Sponsors felt they couldn't come right out and ask a girl if she was good-looking.

The Russians, booted out of the Congo once before, are again scattering rubles like dragon's teeth in hopes of keeping the rebellion in the northeastern part of the country going.

They reportedly have agreed to provide weapons and money for an airlift of arms and advisers to the Congolese rebels, to be run by Egypt and Algeria.

The reasons for this latest Soviet safari into troubled jungles seem clear-cut. The central government of the Congo is not pro-Communist. Thus by Marxist logic it is anti-Communist. So the new leaders in the Kremlin are anxious to demonstrate to restless Africans that Russia will support all wars of righteous revolution against the colonialists or their lackeys.

It is also quite likely that they are not happy over the points the Red Chinese have been scoring as chief source of aid to the rebels. Anything the Chinese can do, they are in effect saying to African radicals, we Russians can do better.

The reasons behind the action of Algeria and the United Arab Republic are not so immediately evident. The leaders of these countries, while definitely anti-Western, do not want a Communist Africa dominated by either Russia or China.

What they want -- particularly by Nasser of Egypt -- is an Africa dominated from the Arab north. Nasser's dream of pan-Arab empire does not stop at the desert's edge.

A strong Congo could play a commanding role in the future of the continent.

Huge, rich and potentially populous, and lying as it does between expansionist Arab North Africa and isolated, white South Africa, the Congo has inevitably become an ideological battlefield.

The struggle, of course, is more than ideological. But despite the bloody events of recent days, the Congo may be closer to stability than it was six weeks or six months ago.

Whether it continues this progress or begins to retreat back to chaos now seems to depend on how vigorous this Arab-Russian pump - priming operation will be.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

A leader is a person born with a megaphone in his brain and a desire to shout his ability to the world.

Most great leaders in any field — whether they be politicians, soldiers, businessmen, evangelists, artists or rock 'n' roll singers — are to some extent megalomaniacs. This means they have a mania for great or grandiose performance, plus a feeling of personal omnipotence.

There are two types of megalomaniacs—the noisy ones and the quiet ones. If you have to work for one or another— and most people do—it is better to work for a noisy one.

You can always tell when you've satisfied the ego of a noisy megalomaniac; with a quiet one you're never sure.

No person is truly educated unless he looks up a word in the dictionary at least twice a week.

You hear a lot about romances between millionaires and hatcheck girls. But when it comes to marrying, most hatcheck girls wind up with musicians or bartenders.

Being cast up on a desert island all by yourself is pretty dismal, but the loneliest men in civilization are those who play golf with their wives on Saturday because they can't find three other guys to make a foursome.

Just holding things together is hardly enough in this world to make you a hero. Whoever built a statue to a paper clip?

A woman always should have something to look forward to. That's why a wise husband never gives his bride a diamond engagement ring until their 50th wedding anniversary.

The average beggar is about as shrewd a judge of human nature as the average personnel manager — but he can make quicker judgements.

It's high time universities gave course in "footballeese," the gibberish in which sportscasters describe the art of pushing, kicking, or passing an inflated pigskin up and down a gridiron. It certainly is the most rapidly growing language in America, but I have yet to meet a fan able to tell me in English just what a "flanker back" is, and how he earns his living.

What makes many of us so neurotic isn't that we can't have what we want but that we are faced with so many choices we can't decide what we really do desire. The world was just as happy when ice cream came in only three flavors — vanilla, chocolate and strawberry.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Johnson doesn't know it, but he may have the John Birch Society as his neighbor.

Reed Benson, son of ex-President Eisenhower's Secretary of Agriculture, Ezra Taft Benson, is doing his best to locate the John Birch headquarters at 1750 Pennsylvania Avenue, just up the street from the White House.

The owner of the building, the Charles E. Smith Co., isn't too eager to have the right wing organization as a tenant. However, Benson has been persistent, is offering top-dollar rent.

This focuses attention on one of the ironic developments of the post-Eisenhower years, in which the son of the man whom Ike kept in the Cabinet for eight years has been campaigning all over the nation as paid representative of the John Birch Society, whose founder called Eisenhower "a dedicated agent for the Communist conspiracy."

It also focuses attention on the manner in which Reed Benson has used his father's position as an apostle in the Mormon church. By bringing the church into politics, Reed was able to score the only real victory for the Birchites during the recent election.

There is no question that Reed is Papa's boy. When Reed faced military service, his father, a member of the Mormon church's ruling "Council of Twelve," got him commissioned as a chaplain.

Later, when Reed left military service, Ezra got his son a top job in the Veterans Administration. Associates recall that Reed delivered political speeches, chewed licorice, and took naps. Since his father was a member of the Cabinet, the younger Benson did not have to extend himself as a bureaucrat.

--RELIGION TO BIRCHISM--

With the end of the Eisenhower administration, both father and son lost their jobs. Now Reed has become a pulpit-pounding, licorice-chewing evangelist for the John Birch Society. And despite the derogatory barbs which leading Birchites have aimed at Eisenhower, the elder Benson has dutifully put his prestige as an ex-Cabinet member and a Mormon apostle on the line for his son by showing up as a star attraction at John Birch rallies.

Reed did so much propagandizing for the Society at Mormon meetings, invoking the name of his father and hinting that he had even the support of the much-loved Mormon prophet, David O. McKay, that the church was obliged to disassociate itself from the John Birch Society, indirectly it also rebuked young Benson. A formal statement was issued by David O. McKay denouncing both the Communist party and the John Birch Society.

Unchastened, both Bensons kept up their John Birch activity outside of Mormon chapels until the church discreetly transferred apostle Benson to Europe.

This was precipitated, in part, by a restrained attack on him by Idaho's Congressman Ralph Harding, a Democrat and devout Mormon, who had been ordained as a missionary by Benson. In a choked voice, Harding told the House of Representatives it was the hardest speech he had ever felt it his duty to deliver.

--REED'S REVENGE--

The speech provoked young Benson to start a campaign of vengeance. He raised money, sent Birchers to picket Harding's speeches, even injected his own church (many of its members unwittingly) into politics to defeat the Congressman who had criticized his father.

During the early part of the campaign, several carloads of Birchites invaded Idaho to work against Harding, but they had little impact. Harding had been a conscientious Congressman, worked hard for his district. So Reed Benson took a new tack. He made it appear that Harding, though a Mormon, had been critical of his own church. Actually he had been critical not of Benson's religions but of his politics.

"Latter Day Saints (Mormons) are taught from childhood that criticism of church authorities is a very grievous sin," Congressman Harding wrote in a letter to a friend.

"In fact, in some Sunday School classes I have heard it taught that it ranks behind murder and adultery and ahead of such things as dishonesty, vulgarity, drunkenness.

"Therefore, throughout the campaign, Reed Benson and members of the Birch Society based their campaign among the Latter Day Saints people on the fact that Congressman Harding was guilty of a great sin when he criticized an apostle of the Lord.

"Some church leaders in Idaho became so carried away that they used the church to campaign against me, justifying their action because of my criticism of Apostle Benson.

"In addition, the John Birch Society circularized all members of the church with a full-page newspaper and containing a speech by Ezra Taft Benson criticizing me and praising the Birch Society. This same speech had been recorded on a radio tape by Apostle Benson and was sponsored over radio stations throughout the district by prominent church members, including many who did not even know that it was a speech supporting the Birch Society. They sponsored it simply because it was a speech by Apostle Ezra Taft Benson."

That was how Reed Benson managed to defeat one of the best Democratic congressmen from the Rocky Mountain states; also managed to score the only political victory for the John Birch Society in the last campaign. The Birchites spent a lot of time and money on various candidates. Thanks to the Benson father-and-son team and their use of their own church members, however, they scored one victory — in Idaho.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: -- Enterprising Cosa Nostra chieftains, ever seeking new money-making "businesses", have developed a multi-million dollar "fire - for - hire" network operating successfully in 10 states.

With characteristic disdain for local law enforcement agencies, the Mafia syndicate leaders actually have put their arson specialists on the road soliciting business.

Their "clientele" are other leaders of organized crime who want fires set or places bombed into flames in order to collect insurance money on profitless restaurants and bars; or to terrorize legitimate restaurateurs or to warn unions to stay in line.

So successful has been the solicitation of the "have -torch -will-travel" advance men that the authorities believe they and local arsonists were responsible for 904 fraudulent fires of property insured for $36.5 million in 1964 alone.

Reports of the mobs' soliciting fire-setting business were confidentially turned over to the Justice Dept. last year by the country's leading authority on the traveling "torches." He is Brendan "Pete" Battle, manager of the Arson, Theft and Fraud Dept., National Board of Fire Underwriters, headquartered in New York City.

"Where a few years before, practically all attempted frauds had been individual acts of desperation," Mr. Battle said recently, "on the part of individual homeowners, small merchants or other business men, it was now found that professional fire-setters were soliciting business and taking care of a number of customers, most often in the same general area or in the same type of business enterprise."

In other words, the hoodlums' traveling arsonists--some of whom have gone as far as 1,000 miles on a job -- are specialists.

Most of them concentrate in the midwest states, but especially in the Chicago metropolitan area. However, since they operate in the same manner as professional gunmen, they live elsewhere and belong to distant sections of the Cosa Nostra.

Some rings discovered by Pete Battle and his flying squads consist of three men. But there have been as many as ten for a major job which requires considerable planning. Obviously there are plenty of arsonists, since some of their rings have been discovered in a total of 17 states ranging from upper New York to Florida, from the southwest away up to Alaska. Some of these have been wiped out, especially in New York and in the Southwest, according to the Fire Underwriters' reports.

This was accomplished by a unique system of intelligence about which Pete Battle will not talk. However, he did say not too long ago:

"A most gratifying and helpful development in the field of fraud fire investigation has resulted from the ready availability, country-wide, of special agents of this department to whom confidential information bearing on contemplated or anticipated fires is channeled. ."

Mr. Battle is the authority on the organized criminal syndicates and the torch-for-hire business. He reports that "more and more frequently" his men have found the links between professional fire setting and the Cosa Nostra.

Some of the "torch" specialists were at the 1957 "cook-out" crime convention in Apalachin, N. Y. One of the fire-setting group is a Mafia chief from the Pittston, Pa., district. Records reveal he is in the garment business.

Fire-setting by individuals of this type is also commonplace in their own local areas of operation. Some of those in the fire-for-hire operation are well known to the federal and local authorities as veteran racketeers mixed up in industrial rackets extortion, narcotics, prostitution, for many years.

Mr. Battle charges bluntly that "syndicate-hoodlums are believed to have been responsible for recent criminal fire-setting in at least 10 states in the East and Midwest. Bombings and arsons by these hoodlums are commonplace in the Metropolitan Chicago area and in two or three states along the eastern seaboard. . .We have been encountering with increasing frequency interstate travel on the part of gangland torches who have been given contracts calling for the destruction of business premises by fire.

". . .Racketeers have learned that fire-setting can be a very lucrative source of income through insurance collection as well as a weapon to be used as intimidation for organizing purposes or for eliminating business competitors."

As a result of the vast compilation of fire-fraud evidence by the Fire Underwriters, the Justice Dept. has launched a drive for inclusion of arson in a special law which would permit the FBI to go after the fire-for-hire merchants.

CALIFORNIA COURT HITS MACHINISTS UNION FOR POLITICAL SUPPRESSION

A California district Court of Appeals has hit a hard blow at the suppression of individual liberty by big monopoly unionism. The decision, on November 14, was in the widely-publicized "Expulsion" case. The union, International Association of Machinists, announced it will appeal the decision.

The case whirled around the Right to Work issue. Two workers at the Lockheed aircraft plant, both members of the machinists union, actively supported Right to Work legislation in the 1958 election. The men, Cecil C. Mitchell and John Mulgrew, were expelled by the union for "conduct unbecoming of union members." This was spelled out to mean that they had championed Right to Work while the union officials were denouncing it.

The two workers fought back for their freedom of speech. Various groups came to their aid. Funds were raised. Two outstanding lawyers, Edwin H. Franzen and William M. Miller, were employed. The California Committee for Voluntary Unionism and the Citizens Committee for Democracy in Labor Unions stayed behind the case through a lower court adverse decision and the long litigation of appeal.

The Appeals court held that the expulsion of the two workers by the union violated their freedom of speech and freedom of political activity. It noted significantly that coercion (through fear) of the entire union membership would result from the expulsions. The decision said in part: "Even though a member may keep his job when expelled, his expulsion causes him a detriment, the apprehension of which would have a coercive effect on the membership . . . Also he has a financial stake in the strike funds, perhaps a pension fund and other funds toward which he had contributed. Further, he is denied the right to participate in his union 'government.'" The decision also said: "Expulsion cannot serve to quiet the individual. It can serve only to quiet those who remain. . . The question is whether the community should tolerate that result . . . If this were the case we would be deprived of an immeasurably important source of political thought."

We hope that Governor Hearnes and the 1965 Missouri Legislature will enact the following:

MEDICAL CARE FOR THE AGED. -- At the last session of the Legislature, Missouri set up a medical care program for aged welfare recipients. The program called for $6,000,000 in Federal matching funds under the Kerr-Mills Act.

We urge review of that program for economy and efficiency and, in event of a favorable report, extension of benefits and expansion of recipients to include the "near needy" who we excluded only by a gubernatorial veto.

WHILE THERE'S LIFE

In the biography Bob Hope furnished Who's Who in America appears the modest line: "Entertained Service Forces, overseas, 1945." Actually Bob Hope and his troupe took off last month on their 24th annual visit to military outposts. Highlights of the tour, which included stops in Korea, Thailand, South Viet Nam, the Philippines, and Guam, will be shown on NBC-TV on Friday, Jan. 15.

Hope's constant companion on these Christmas jaunts has been Jerry Colonna. Les Brown and his band have missed only one. And Hope has always managed to round up a bevy of brave beauties. This trip was Anita Bryant's fifth.

The Hope troupe arrived in Saigon just minutes after the bombing of officers' quarters on Christmas Eve. They played to artillery accompaniment at the helicopter base at Vinh Long. "Well," said Hope, "We came over where the action is. We got a little more than expected, but that's okay."

The company played to more than 20,000 -- their biggest audience ever -- in Clark Air Force Base's Bamboo Bowl in the Philippines. Bob himself suffered second - degree sunburn of the lower lip.

During World War II and the Korean hostilities stage and screen stars vied with each other to entertain the troops. Katherine Cornell and Brian Aherne put on The Barrets of Wimpole Street wherever they could find an undemolished theatre. Lunt and Fontanne played uninterrupted during air raids. Marlene Dietrich sang Lili Marlene at Army service camps and accompanied herself on the musical saw.

The people of show biz played the G. I. circuit with real grace and considerable courage. But now, according to George Jessel, who returned in late December from a tour of classified installations in Europe, the troops are starved for entertainment.

While there's life -- and soldiers -- there's Hope. Which makes pretty prophetic Thomas Fuller, who wrote years ago, "Hope is worth any money."

"Young man," said the woman, "my sister and I have been running this drugstore for nearly 30 years. There is nothing you can tell us that will embarrass us."

"Well, all right," he said. "I have this awful sexual hunger that nothing will appease. No matter how many times I make love, I still want to make love again. Is there anything you can give me for it?"

"Just a moment," said the little lady, "I'll have to discuss this with my sister."

A scientist has worked out a quick way to determine whether you are too fat. Dr. Norman B. Marshall, metabolic researcher for a drug firm, says to forget about pounds and use this formula:

Calculate your height in inches, then subtract your waistline measurement. Marshall says a difference of 36 is normal, 38 indicates a tendency toward leanness, and 33 or less indicates obesity.

Men, he says, should use the formula with their shoes on, women with their shoes off. Also, he added, for women it should be done with girdles off, and exhaling.

When a husband is intemperate is it usually a nagging wife who has driven him to drink?

No, says the Catholic Digest. "The type of woman who will drive her husband to drink" has no being in fact. They found that the personality types of wives of temperate husbands were no different from those of alcoholics.

5734-B LOVES 6128-G

It apparently started at a Yale University dance, where of yore the girls from nearby women's colleges would flutter hopefully onto the campus to be met by an uneasy stag line of undergraduates to begin the awkward, uncertain process of pairing off.

At a recent dance, however, each girl was directed immediately to her date, who had been chosen earlier by questionaires and a computer sorting device, as had she.

It was reportedly the most efficiently mixed mixer ever. Tall girls found tall boys; political sentiments were matched to like sentiments; good dancers found girls to whom that was important; intellectuals were introduced to intellectuals, and so on.

Then Purdue University used a computer to select "perfect dates" for a dance.

A similar procedure was tried at the University of Cincinnati, and at Michigan State University.

Sentimental types who are saddened by this mechanization of romance can take solace from the fact that these computerized affairs were not entirely successful.

For one thing, no machine is better than the information put into it and at Yale, at any rate, this resulted in a few cases of male disillusionment.

It seems that the only physical statistic on the girls' questionaires concerned height. Sponsors felt they couldn't come right out and ask a girl if she was good-looking.

The Russians, booted out of the Congo once before, are again scattering rubles like dragon's teeth in hopes of keeping the rebellion in the northeastern part of the country going.

They reportedly have agreed to provide weapons and money for an airlift of arms and advisers to the Congolese rebels, to be run by Egypt and Algeria.

The reasons for this latest Soviet safari into troubled jungles seem clear-cut. The central government of the Congo is not pro-Communist. Thus by Marxist logic it is anti - Communist. So the new leaders in the Kremlin are anxious to demonstrate to restless Africans that Russia will support all wars of righteous revolution against the colonialists or their lackeys.

It is also quite likely that they are not happy over the points the Red Chinese have been scoring as chief source of aid to the rebels. Anything the Chinese can do, they are in effect saying to African radicals, we Russians can do better.

The reasons behind the action of Algeria and the United Arab Republic are not so immediately evident. The leaders of these countries, while definitely anti - Western, do not want a Communist Africa dominated by either Russia or China.

What they want -- particularly by Nasser of Egypt -- is an Africa dominated from the Arab north. Nasser's dream of pan-Arab empire does not stop at the desert's edge.

A strong Congo could play a commanding role in the future of the continent.

Huge, rich and potentially populous, and lying as it does between expansionist Arab North Africa and isolated, white South Africa, the Congo has inevitably become an ideological battlefield.

The struggle, of course, is more than ideological. But despite the bloody events of recent days, the Congo may be closer to stability than it was six weeks or six months ago.

Whether it continues this progress or begins to retreat back to chaos now seems to depend on how vigorous this Arab-Russian pump - priming operation will be.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

A leader is a person born with a megaphone in his brain and a desire to shout his ability to the world.

Most great leaders in any field — whether they be politicians, soldiers, businessmen, evangelists, artists or rock 'n' roll singers — are to some extent megalomaniacs. This means they have a mania for great or grandiose performance, plus a feeling of personal omnipotence.

There are two types of megalomaniacs—the noisy ones and the quiet ones. If you have to work for one or another— and most people do—it is better to work for a noisy one.

You can always tell when you've satisfied the ego of a noisy megalomaniac; with a quiet one you're never sure.

No person is truly educated unless he looks up a word in the dictionary at least twice a week.

You hear a lot about romances between millionaires and hatcheck girls. But when it comes to marrying, most hatcheck girls wind up with musicians or bartenders.

Being cast up on a desert island all by yourself is pretty dismal, but the loneliest men in civilization are those who play golf with their wives on Saturday because they can't find three other guys to make a foursome.

Just holding things together is hardly enough in this world to make you a hero. Whoever built a statue to a paper clip?

A woman always should have something to look forward to. That's why a wise husband never gives his bride a diamond engagement ring until their 50th wedding anniversary.

The average beggar is about as shrewd a judge of human nature as the average personnel manager — but he can make quicker judgements.

It's high time universities gave course in "footballeese," the gibberish in which sportscasters describe the art of pushing, kicking, or passing an inflated pigskin up and down a gridiron. It certainly is the most rapidly growing language in America, but I have yet to meet a fan able to tell me in English just what a "flanker back" is, and how he earns his living.

What makes many of us so neurotic isn't that we can't have what we want but that we are faced with so many choices we can't decide what we really do desire. The world was just as happy when ice cream came in only three flavors — vanilla, chocolate and strawberry.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Johnson doesn't know it, but he may have the John Birch Society as his neighbor.

Reed Benson, son of ex-President Eisenhower's Secretary of Agriculture, Ezra Taft Benson, is doing his best to locate the John Birch headquarters at 1750 Pennsylvania Avenue, just up the street from the White House.

The owner of the building, the Charles E. Smith Co., isn't too eager to have the right wing organization as a tenant. However, Benson has been persistent, is offering top-dollar rent.

This focuses attention on one of the ironic developments of the post-Eisenhower years, in which the son of the man whom Ike kept in the Cabinet for eight years has been campaigning all over the nation as paid representative of the John Birch Society, whose founder called Eisenhower "a dedicated agent for the Communist conspiracy."

It also focuses attention on the manner in which Reed Benson has used his father's position as an apostle in the Mormon church. By bringing the church into politics, Reed was able to score the only real victory for the Birchites during the recent election.

There is no question that Reed is Papa's boy. When Reed faced military service, his father, a member of the Mormon church's ruling "Council of Twelve," got him commissioned as a chaplain.

Later, when Reed left military service, Ezra got his son a top job in the Veterans Administration. Associates recall that Reed delivered political speeches, chewed licorice, and took naps. Since his father was a member of the Cabinet, the younger Benson did not have to extend himself as a bureaucrat.

--RELIGION TO BIRCHISM--

With the end of the Eisenhower administration, both father and son lost their jobs. Now Reed has become a pulpit-pounding, licorice-chewing evangelist for the John Birch Society. And despite the derogatory barbs which leading Birchites have aimed at Eisenhower, the elder Benson has dutifully put his prestige as an ex-Cabinet member and a Mormon apostle on the line for his son by showing up as a star attraction at John Birch rallies.

Reed did so much propagandizing for the Society at Mormon meetings, invoking the name of his father and hinting that he had even the support of the much-loved Mormon prophet, David O. McKay, that the church was obliged to disassociate itself from the John Birch Society, indirectly it also rebuked young Benson. A formal statement was issued by David O. McKay denouncing both the Communist party and the John Birch Society.

Unchastened, both Bensons kept up their John Birch activity outside of Mormon chapels until the church discreetly transferred apostle Benson to Europe.

This was precipitated, in part, by a restrained attack on him by Idaho's Congressman Ralph Harding, a Democrat and devout Mormon, who had been ordained as a missionary by Benson. In a choked voice, Harding told the House of Representatives it was the hardest speech he had ever felt it his duty to deliver.

--REED'S REVENGE--

The speech provoked young Benson to start a campaign of vengeance. He raised money, sent Birchers to picket Harding's speeches, even injected his own church (many of its members unwittingly) into politics to defeat the Congressman who had criticized his father.

During the early part of the campaign, several carloads of Birchites invaded Idaho to work against Harding, but they had little impact. Harding had been a conscientious Congressman, worked hard for his district. So Reed Benson took a new tack. He made it appear that Harding, though a Mormon, had been critical of his own church. Actually he had been critical not of Benson's religions but of his politics.

"Latter Day Saints (Mormons) are taught from childhood that criticism of church authorities is a very grievous sin," Congressman Harding wrote in a letter to a friend.

"In fact, in some Sunday School classes I have heard it taught that it ranks behind murder and adultery and ahead of such things as dishonesty, vulgarity, drunkenness.

"Therefore, throughout the campaign, Reed Benson and members of the Birch Society based their campaign among the Latter Day Saints people on the fact that Congressman Harding was guilty of a great sin when he criticized an apostle of the Lord.

"Some church leaders in Idaho became so carried away that they used the church to campaign against me, justifying their action because of my criticism of Apostle Benson.

"In addition, the John Birch Society circularized all members of the church with a full-page newspaper and containing a speech by Ezra Taft Benson criticizing me and praising the Birch Society. This same speech had been recorded on a radio tape by Apostle Benson and was sponsored over radio stations throughout the district by prominent church members, including many who did not even know that it was a speech supporting the Birch Society. They sponsored it simply because it was a speech by Apostle Ezra Taft Benson."

That was how Reed Benson managed to defeat one of the best Democratic congressmen from the Rocky Mountain states; also managed to score the only political victory for the John Birch Society in the last campaign. The Birchites spent a lot of time and money on various candidates. Thanks to the Benson father-and-son team and their use of their own church members, however, they scored one victory — in Idaho.

Crime Syndicates Now Solicit Fire-For-Hire Business.

WASHINGTON, D. C.: -- Enterprising Cosa Nostra chieftains, ever seeking new money-making "businesses", have developed a multi-million dollar "fire - for - hire" network operating successfully in 10 states.

With characteristic disdain for local law enforcement agencies, the Mafia syndicate leaders actually have put their arson specialists on the road soliciting business.

Their "clientele" are other leaders of organized crime who want fires set or places bombed into flames in order to collect insurance money on profitless restaurants and bars; or to terrorize legitimate restaurateurs or to warn unions to stay in line.

So successful has been the solicitation of the "have -torch -will-travel" advance men that the authorities believe they and local arsonists were responsible for 904 fraudulent fires of property insured for $36.5 million in 1964 alone.

Reports of the mobs' soliciting fire-setting business were confidentially turned over to the Justice Dept. last year by the country's leading authority on the traveling "torches." He is Brendan "Pete" Battle, manager of the Arson, Theft and Fraud Dept., National Board of Fire Underwriters, headquartered in New York City.

"Where a few years before, practically all attempted frauds had been individual acts of desperation," Mr. Battle said recently, "on the part of individual homeowners, small merchants or other business men, it was now found that professional fire-setters were soliciting business and taking care of a number of customers, most often in the same general area or in the same type of business enterprise."

In other words, the hoodlums' traveling arsonists--some of whom have gone as far as 1,000 miles on a job -- are specialists.

Most of them concentrate in the midwest states, but especially in the Chicago metropolitan area. However, since they operate in the same manner as professional gunmen, they live elsewhere and belong to distant sections of the Cosa Nostra.

Some rings discovered by Pete Battle and his flying squads consist of three men. But there have been as many as ten for a major job which requires considerable planning. Obviously there are plenty of arsonists, since some of their rings have been discovered in a total of 17 states ranging from upper New York to Florida, from the southwest away up to Alaska. Some of these have been wiped out, especially in New York and in the Southwest, according to the Fire Underwriters' reports.

This was accomplished by a unique system of intelligence about which Pete Battle will not talk. However, he did say not too long ago:

"A most gratifying and helpful development in the field of fraud fire investigation has resulted from the ready availability, country-wide, of special agents of this department to whom confidential information bearing on contemplated or anticipated fires is channeled. ."

Mr. Battle is the authority on the organized criminal syndicates and the torch-for-hire business. He reports that "more and more frequently" his men have found the links between professional fire setting and the Cosa Nostra.

Some of the "torch" specialists were at the 1957 "cookout" crime convention in Apalachin, N. Y. One of the fire-setting group is a Mafia chief from the Pittston, Pa., district. Records reveal he is in the garment business.

Fire-setting by individuals of this type is also commonplace in their own local areas of operation. Some of those in the fire-for-hire operation are well known to the federal and local authorities as veteran racketeers mixed up in industrial rackets extortion, narcotics, prostitution, for many years.

Mr. Battle charges bluntly that "syndicate-hoodlums are believed to have been responsible for recent criminal fire-setting in at least 10 states in the East and Midwest. Bombings and arsons by these hoodlums are commonplace in the Metropolitan Chicago area and in two or three states along the eastern seaboard. . .We have been encountering with increasing frequency interstate travel on the part of gangland torches who have been given contracts calling for the destruction of business premises by fire.

". . .Racketeers have learned that fire-setting can be a very lucrative source of income through insurance collection as well as a weapon to be used as intimidation for organizing purposes or for eliminating business competitors."

As a result of the vast compilation of fire-fraud evidence by the Fire Underwriters, the Justice Dept. has launched a drive for inclusion of arson in a special law which would permit the FBI to go after the fire-for-hire merchants.

Miss Marilyn Lankheir of Charleston Becomes Bride of David Charles Renaud

CHARLESTON-- In one of the most beautiful weddings of the season, Miss Maryilyn Benjamen Lankheit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Lankheit, became the bride of David Charles Renaud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalbert Renaud, Route 2, Charleston, on Saturday, January 9, 1965 at 12:45 p.m. in St. Henry's Catholic Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by Monsignor Charles P. Schmitt, pastor of St. Henry's, at a nuptial high mass. The altars were decorated with red and white carnations and white gladiolis.

The acolytes were John Bledsoe, Ray Baudendistal, Douglas Simmons and Robert Uthoff, all cousins of the bride or groom.

The bride given in marriage by her father was lovely in a gown of white satin peau de soie. Her princess line styled bodice featured a bateau neckline edged with French cording and Alencon lace medallions were across the top. The long straight sleeves came to lily points over her hands. The floor length skirt was controlled with side fullness caught up in graceful pleats and overlaid with lace medallions. The fullness was repeated again in the center back and swept to a chapel train.

Her headdress was a double crown of pearls with crystal drops falling from each point. Attached to this was a hand rolled bouffant elbow length veil of imported English silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

Miss Alice Ann Lankheit served her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the bride's two sisters, Misses Rosemary and Abigail Lankheit and Miss Cissy Ewing of Teutopolis, Ill.

The attendants dresses were identical floor length gowns of scarlet velvet with three-quarter length sleeves. The close fitting bodices featured renaissance neckline with a self fabric bow and streamers enhancing the back waist. Soft pleats encircled the waist forming a semi-controlled skirt. They wore rose caps with nose veils dyed to match their dresses and carried muffs adorned with red carnations.

Emma Jane Lankheit, sister of the bride and Mosemary Renaud, sister of the groom, served as flower girls. Robert Mark Renaud brother of the groom, served as ring bearer.

The flower girls wore dresses identical to the bridesmaids and white fur head bands adorned their heads. They carried white lace baskets with red rose petals.

The bridegroom chose Herman Lankheit for his best man. Groomsmen were Joseph Rolwing, Joseph Lankheit and John Renaud. Ushers were Stephen Stricker, James Sevic, Michael Bryant and Ronald Chambers.

After the ceremony the organist, Sister Miraim Paul, CPPS, played as the choir sang "Mary All Beautiful" as the bride placed a bouquet of red roses at the foot of the altar of the Blessed Mother.

The bride's mother wore a purple wool suit, matching flowered hat, and black accessories. The mother of the groom wore a lime green suit with black accessories. Both mothers wore orchids.

Mr. Jesse S. Bledsoe, Sr. of New Madrid, grandfather of the bride and Mrs. Mary Lankheit the bride's grandmother and Mrs. Appie Renaud, the groom's grandmother were all present and wore white carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony, a reception and luncheon service and had white tapers in silver candle holders.

The luncheon table was centered with a white fenced in grass yard with an ivy twined trellis under which stood dolls dressed as bride and groom. this was the bride's center piece for her 16th birthday and was made by Mr. and Mrs. Linus Halter.

Receiving the guests at the guest register was the groom's sister, Miss Ann Renaud. Miss Mary Sue Renaud, sister of the groom and Miss Ann Rowe served punch. Mrs. Peter Rost of New Madrid, served the wedding cake.

Martha Renaud, sister of the groom, and Patti Ben and Carol Mason Rickard of Cape Girardeau, cousins of the bride, passed out red rice bags from white baskets.

Immediately following the reception the couple left for a trip to points of interest in Mississippi. For traveling the bride chose a midnight blue double knit suit with a silver mink collar and matching blue hat. She also wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet and black accessories. Joy never brings an extra shirt
When it comes to visit your heart;
Its visits are exciting, but brief;

Chamberlain Has Thoughts Of Retiring After Season

Chamberlain Tells It Is Bad Deal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain might retire at the end of this National Basketball Association season, leaving the Philadelphia 76ers holding an empty money bag.

The 76 ers paid a reported $75,000 Wednesday night to the San Francisco Warriors for the 7-foot-1 scoring machine. Philadelphia threw in a reserve center-forward with a recent history of fainting spells, one of the shortest guards in the league and a forward who has yet to play his first NBA minute this season.

Superficially, this sounds worse than it actually is for the Warriors. But if Chamberlain plays only the three remaining months of the season and retires at the ripe young age of 28, it's a financial bath for the 76ers without the bubbles.

"I told him he made a bad deal," Chamberlain said Thursday about Philadelphia co-owner Ike Richman. "I'm not sure how long I'll play. "I take one year at a time," Chamberlain continued. "Right now, I'm not sure what I'll be doing next season."

Chamberlain said there were many reasons why he was considering retirement, but he didn't want to name them yet.

Richman, a close friend and lawyer of the highest paid NBA player, took an equally short sighted view from his Philadelphia law office.

"Wilt told me he would only talk about one year," said Richman. "That's all right with me.

"Let the future take care of itself, I know I have Chamberlain this year — definitely.

"I expect to have him for many more years. However, he has a right to do what he thinks is best for himself. And, when he makes that decision, when he wants to retire, we will always remain friends."

The Warriors play the New York Knicks in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium tonight without the services of two of their acquisitions and, perhaps, without the other.

Paul Neumann, the 6-foot-1 ex-Stanford star, said he might wait for the Warriors to come East. Lee Shaffer, who refused to play this season for the 76ers, definitely isn't in shape and probably won't be around. And Connie Dierking didn't appear for practice in San Francisco Thursday.

Chamberlain was given a week to rest, treat his broken nose and say goodby to friends in San Francisco. So the first game he plays for the 76ers could be against the Warriors.

Neumann, a hot-shooting guard, averaged 11.6 last season as a part-time player.

Shaffer, a 6-7 forward from North Carolina, averaged 13.1 last season and 18.6 the year before. Hannum said Shaffer could be one of the greatest players in the league but expressed some concern over his injured knee. They talked for hours last Sunday with the 76ers' permission.

Dierking, a 6-9 graduate of Cincinnati, suffered fainting spells this season. Medical tests failed to show anything physically wrong with him.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife Thursday announced an experimental nine-day hunting season, primarily for taking of blue-winged teal, will be tried in the Central and Mississippi fly-ways in September.

The blue-wings are an early-migrating North American duck. Bulk of the blue-wings normally migrate before opening of the regular waterfowl hunting season and shooting pressure on them is light.

States in the two flyways include Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and others.

Bureau Director John Gottschalk said local information concerning specific season dates and other regulations will be announced by individual state fish and game departments.

Bulldogs Enter P. B. Tourney

Following a rugged schedule to remain above the 500 percent level the Bulldogs will enter the Poplar Bluff Tournament by playing second seeded Greenville Tuesday night.

Currently the Bulldogs have won four games and lost three. In conference play they are one and one.

Tournament action will begin Monday night when top seeded Poplar Bluff collides with Clearwater at 7:00. The second game will be between fourth seeded Doniphan and unseeded Malden.

The last of the opening round games will be played Tuesday night following the Sikeston-Greenville game when the third-seeded Kennett Indians clash with the Fisk Pirates.

After Tuesday night's games, action will lapse until Friday when the winners of first round games collide. The Monday night victors collide at 7:00 and Tuesday night victors collide at 8:30. There will be no consolation bracket for first round losers.

Before the Bulldog crew can think about tourney play they must reckon with a pair of formidable foes. Tonight they face Charleston and tomorrow night Caruthersville comes visiting.

Currently the Dogs are in fourth place in the SEMO conference. Like the Varsity, the "B" team is sporting a one and one conference record and they hold down the number four spot. Unlike the Varsity, the Bullpups are in the midst of a two game losing streak. They won their first three games to give them a three and two seasonal mark.

Poplar Bluff is at the helm in both the Varsity and "B" team brackets. Here is how they currently stand prior to tonight's games.

WARMING UP—Out of action for three weeks with an undisclosed illness, Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star Frank Mahovlich comes back to the ice for practice before returning to full duty.

One More Game To Be Played

HOUSTON (AP) — The football season isn't over yet. Always time for one more. The floating All-Star game of the American Football League will be played Saturday at Jeppesen Stadium. Already they are dreaming up games to lengthen next season.

The AFL is considering a proposal to add a new game in early August at New York's Shea Stadium between the league champion Buffalo Bills and the AFL All-Stars.

Since Ralph Wilson, owner of the Bills, and Sonny Werblin, the New York Jet owner who distributes $400,000 bonus checks, both are in favor of the game — its chances are good. The league will take action later this week.

There will be no conflict between this game and the All-America game among pro rookies in Buffalo June 27 or the College All-Star game in Chicago Aug. 6.

In the Chicago game the National Football League champion Cleveland Browns play rookie all-stars from both leagues.

If the AFL goes along with the new game it will upset the training plans of its clubs. Each team would have to give up a number of regulars to form an all-star team just a few days before the exhibition season starts.

In the meantime, the two teams for Saturday's transplanted game are down to a one-a-day practice session after a series of double workouts.

The Chicago Black Hawks didn't win. But they didn't lose either, and their 0-0 deadlock with the Toronto Maple Leafs widened the Hawks' National Hockey League lead to two points over idle Montreal.

The tie game, only league action scheduled Wednesday night, moved the third-place Leafs to within three points of the Canadiens. The standoff was the league's first since Nov. 30, 1963.

BRUSSELS (AP) -- Belgium's Aurele Vandendriessche, winner of the Boston Marathon for the last two years, said he will run again in the race April 17.

League To Remain With Eight Teams

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Football League will remain an eight-team league in 1965 and probably for at least two more years although it has scheduled an expansion meeting to consider 38 applications this year.

Commissioner Joe Foss said Thursday the AFL will investigate the various groups applying for franchises and then make up its mind when and if it wants to add any new clubs.

Foss said nine groups from Philadelphia, five from Atlanta, four each from Washington and Chicago, three from Milwaukee and two from Los Angeles have made inquiries. He also had heard from would-be owners in Miami, New Orleans, Birmingham, Seattle, Portland, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Although Foss declined to name names he did reveal he had spoken to Arthur Allyn, owner of the Chicago White Sox, earlier this week in Chicago. Allyn would like to put an AFL franchise in Comiskey Park.

All league owners assured Foss they expected to stand pat in their present cities at least through 1965. Anaheim, Calif., new home of the Los Angeles Angels, has been making a strong pitch for San Diego and there are rumors that Denver eventually might be headed toward Philadelphia.

Under the terms of a new five-year $36-million television contract with the National Broadcasting Co., it is reported each team will get $750,000 in 1965, $800,000 in 1966, $850,000 in 1967, $900,000 in 1968, and $950,000 in 1969. There is an additional $2-million expansion fund that probably would be split among new franchises. That fund could provide $500,000 for each of two new clubs in 1968 and 1969 but lesser amounts if spread over more than two years.

Under the new television setup, an attempt will be made to screen most of the teams' road games in the home city. The league will operate once more on a 15-week schedule adding an extra week by alloting open fates as it did last season. Milt Woodard, assistant commissioner, has the job of making up the schedule.

Chamberlain Has Thoughts Of Retiring After Season

Chamberlain Tells It Is Bad Deal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain might retire at the end of this National Basketball Association season, leaving the Philadelphia 76ers holding an empty money bag.

The 76 ers paid a reported $75,000 Wednesday night to the San Francisco Warriors for the 7-foot-1 scoring machine. Philadelphia threw in a reserve center-forward with a recent history of fainting spells, one of the shortest guards in the league and a forward who has yet to play his first NBA minute this season.

Superficially, this sounds worse than it actually is for the Warriors. But if Chamberlain plays only the three remaining months of the season and retires at the ripe young age of 28, it's a financial bath for the 76ers without the bubbles.

"I told him he made a bad deal," Chamberlain said Thursday about Philadelphia co-owner Ike Richman. "I'm not sure how long I'll play. "I take one year at a time," Chamberlain continued. "Right now, I'm not sure what I'll be doing next season."

Chamberlain said there were many reasons why he was considering retirement, but he didn't want to name them yet.

Richman, a close friend and lawyer of the highest paid NBA player, took an equally short sighted view from his Philadelphia law office.

"Wilt told me he would only talk about one year," said Richman. "That's all right with me.

"Let the future take care of itself, I know I have Chamberlain this year — definitely.

"I expect to have him for many more years. However, he has a right to do what he thinks is best for himself. And, when he makes that decision, when he wants to retire, we will always remain friends."

The Warriors play the New York Knicks in San Francisco's Civic Auditorium tonight without the services of two of their acquisitions and, perhaps, without the other.

Paul Neumann, the 6-foot-1 ex-Stanford star, said he might wait for the Warriors to come East. Lee Shaffer, who refused to play this season for the 76ers, definitely isn't in shape and probably won't be around. And Connie Dierking didn't appear for practice in San Francisco Thursday.

Chamberlain was given a week to rest, treat his broken nose and say goodby to friends in San Francisco. So the first game he plays for the 76ers could be against the Warriors.

Neumann, a hot-shooting guard, averaged 11.6 last season as a part-time player.

Shaffer, a 6-7 forward from North Carolina, averaged 13.1 last season and 18.6 the year before. Hannum said Shaffer could be one of the greatest players in the league but expressed some concern over his injured knee. They talked for hours last Sunday with the 76ers' permission.

Dierking, a 6-9 graduate of Cincinnati, suffered fainting spells this season. Medical tests failed to show anything physically wrong with him.

Rate of Aging In Women Decreasing

It appears that nature, without artificial assistance, has contrived to bless womanhood with a longer period of "endocrinologic youth," according to an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The editorial referred to a recent report that, in the decade before 1961, the median age of menopause of women in Great Britain was 50.1 years.

This represents an increase of about four years in the age of menopause compared with that of a century ago, the editorial said, and this trend has occurred in most European countries since the last century.

"Analysis of early literature suggests that approximately 40 years was the mean age of menopause in ancient times, and approximately 45 years between 1500 and 1800," the editorial continued.

"These findings are particularly significant in view of the fact that today adolescence occurs at a much earlier age than in the last century.

"This combination of an earlier age of menarche. . . and a later age of menopause provides material for cheerful speculation. It is possible that these changes connote a decreased rate of 'physiological degeneration,' that is, a decreased rate of aging in women in recent decades."

There is no certain explanation for these changes, although better nutrition and improved environmental conditions may play important roles, the editorial added.

Mr. and Mrs. James Monroe Malugen

Miss Carolyn Ferrell and Mr. Malugen Exchange Vows

CHARLESTON -- In a lovely wedding at her parents home on North Main Road, Miss Carolyn Sue Ferrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferrell, became the bride of James Monroe Malugen, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Malugen of Potosi, Mo. The wedding was solemnized Sunday January 10, 1965 at 5:00 p.m. with Bro. George Huffstutter performing the double ring ceremony.

The young people pledged their vows before an arch of 14 lighted tapers in front of the fireplace in the living room. Tall white urns on each side of the fireplace held arrangements of white mums and greenery. On the piano was an arrangement of more candles and leather leaf fern.

Mrs. Moffat Latimer played for Miss Cathy Cook who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer." She also played the traditional wedding march.

The bride given in Marriage by her father, wore a sleeveless costume sheath dress with a queens collar and a matching coat of white satin rose-point brocade. The coat was A-line and had bracelet length sleeves. Her head piece of white silk flowers embroidered with seed pearls and crystals held her bouffant silk illusion shoulder length veil. She carried two white orchids on a white lace covered Bible.

Mrs. Buddy Russell served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a two piece outfit with a dark green velvet skirt and a gold brocade sleeveless top. She wore a dark green velvet Dior bow for her headpiece and her flowers were white roses.

Wayne Malugen, brother of the groom, served as best man.

The brides mother wore a three piece suit of gold brocade with matching gold accessories. She wore a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

The groom's mother wore navy blue silk with matching accessories and a white orchid. A guest of honor, the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Earl Ferrell, wore white gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held. White mums and white pom poms in a silver bowl were used as the central decoration for the refreshment table, which had an over drape of white silk net over white linen. The overdrape was caught at each corner with greenery.

Mrs. Clifford Brumley, the brides aunt served punch and coffee. Mrs. Junior Malugen, the groom's sister-in-law, served the wedding cake. The cake was in three tiers, topped with a white sugar bell and lily of the valley on a white satin heart edged in pearls.

Miss Lynda Dobbs of Bowling Green, Ky., presided at the guest register.

After the reception the bride and bridegroom left for their home in Cape Girardeau. For travel she wore an all white wool suit and a white orchid corsage at her shoulder. Mrs. Malugen is a graduate of Charleston High School and of the Taylor - Ferrell Beauty School at Sikeston. Mr. Malugen is attending Southeast Missouri State College in Cape.

Among the out of town guests were the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Malugen, his brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Malugen, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Malugen all of Potosi, Mo. Also from Potosi were Dr. and Mrs. Edward Lake and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cole. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Taylor, Sikeston. Mrs. Norman Eifert, Bertrand, Mo. Dale Trude and Lynda Dobbs of Bowling Green, Ky. and Earl Ferrell, Sikeston, Mo.

Taste Appeal Accents Beef Short Ribs

Few meat cuts have more savory, old-fashioned appeal than beef short ribs.

They can be varied to serve in many ways, with vegetables, dried fruits, barbecued or spiced. One seasonal variation certain to please is to serve the beef short ribs with sauerkraut.

Short ribs are cut from the ends of the ribs, explains Reba Staggs, widely known meat authority and they contain a section of flat rib bone and alternating layers of lean and fat.

To develop their flavor fully, brown the beef short ribs first. Then, simply add salt, pepper and a small amount of water and cook them, well covered. Sauerkraut is added for only long enough to heat through.

Build an attractive menu around the beef short ribs by serving creamed mixed vegetables, salt sticks, frozen fruit salad and brownies.

New Madrid County Extension Club Hold First Council Meeting

The New Madrid County extension clubs held their first council meeting of 1965 in the Lilbourn Methodist Church at 10 o'clock, Tuesday morning, January 12th. The new officers were in their places: Mrs. Nelson Lumsden, president; Mrs. Henry Hulshof, vice-presidnet, and Mrs. Paul Trout, secretary-treasurer.

This is also the leader training meeting and after a short opening session the group divided into various seminars. Miss Grace Klenn of the state office in Columbia met with club presidents, Mrs. Jas. Roth with vice-presidents, and Mrs. Henry Hulshof with secretaries, treasurers, and reporters. Someone from each seminar reported to the whole group after the pot-luck luncheon.

Mrs. Freddie Lawrence for the presidents spoke of the importance of having the qualities of leadership and developing these qualities in others. The president should be sure meetings are planned, get the co-operation of members, and start promptly.

Mrs. Roth stressed the importance of the vice-president by comparing her to the position of the wife in a family. She should keep in touch with the whole situation so that she may lend a hand wherever needed. Specifically she is responsible for the program.

Mrs. W. O. Burnett, for the secretaries and reporters brought out the difference between minutes and a newspaper report. Minutes should record the details of business such as motions, votes, and bills, while a newspaper report should bring out matters of general interest and importance, always remembering that "extension" is the extenxion of the University of Missouri, and special emphasis should be placed on the educational aspects of programs.

Representatives from the clubs reported on their year's work.

Mrs. Henry Hulshof of Town and Country said they had had all the lessons and found the ones on freezing foods and preparing convenience foods, and the program on international relations especially helpful. Mrs. Paul McClure of East Gideon said they had found particular interest in their health lessons. Mrs. Jim Gilmer of New Hope also stressed health and said they had had 100 per cent response in the use of diabetic strips. Mrs. Freddie Lawrence of Kewanee spoke of the fine backing to 4-H work given by their club and said they are making curtains for the school.

Miss Klenn was the featured speaker. By the use of posters and comments thereon she showed that the resources of the University of Missouri are availavle to all the people of the state. "The State is the Campus", "Four Campuses-Columbia, Rolla, St. Louis, Kansas City", "Functions-Residence Teaching, Research, Extension Teaching", "Areas of Program Emphasis - Agriculture, Business, etc-", and "Youth Development."

It was in May, several years ago that Mildred moved next door. That was a break for Eric. It is so easy to get acquainted with one's neighbors.

The first date naturally called for careful strategy. You don't want to seem too eager — but you want to know what she likes . . . and what she's like. Eric's and Mildred's first date was a Youth Fellowship supper at the church.

Eric happens to be a leader of this group. And Mildred happens to be an earnest Christian girl.

Of course, happens is a very broad word. It means that Eric's and Mildred's parents had once decided that a son or a daughter ought to be given the advantage of religious training.

Now Eric and Mildred are engaged. And everybody says they were meant for each other. And the altar before which they take their vows will be the heart of the religious life of their family. Thus it happens!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

ANN LANDERS

Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am so ashamed of my problem I can't discuss it with anyone. My husband is 40. We have three children. Every evening my husband races the kids to the bathtub and uses all the hot water. He likes to sit in the tub and let the water run -- leaving the drain open. He says he enjoys the "waves" created by the running water. I wouldn't swear to it but I think he floats the baby's rubber duck.

When the kids take their baths I have to heat water on the stove and carry it upstairs, which is a lot of bother. I've asked my husband to be more considerate of me and the children but he sulks and refuses to answer.

Is there a solution to this? -- STUMPED

Dear Stumped: You need a larger water heater -- and you need it now. Put this on the top of your "must have" list and cut corners elsewhere to get it if necessary.

A 40-year-old man who is still playing with rubber ducks is not likely to approach any problem in a mature manner, so work it out alone.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been playing bridge with a certain couple for over 12 years. They are superb bridge players and so are we. The four of us are serious players and there is very little social chatter or foolishness. We have a set game every Thursday night and when we play cards we mean business. It is not uncommon for $40 or $50 to change hands in an evening.

A few days ago I learned that this couple had an elegant dinner party at their club. More than 40 couples were present. My husband and I were not invited. I am deeply hurt.

Shall I tell them at our next card game that if we aren't good enough to be invited to their parties we aren't good enough to play cards with them?--GRAND SLAM

Dear Grand: The answer is in your letter. You said, "When we play cards we mean business." Well, THEY mean business, too, and that's what the relationship means to them.

If you enjoy matching skills with this couple, continue to play cards with them but recognize the fact that you are not social friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Am I mentally ill or what? Whenever I see my family coming up the walk to visit me I want to run to the back of the house and hide. I know it isn't right to feel this way about a mother and two sisters but I do. My husband's family, on the other hand, is wonderful. I love them and they love me.

My childhood memories are nightmarish. There was always a fight at our dinner table. My sisters were mean to me and I hated them. They wore my clothes, took money out of my purse and made me do their work. I left home at 16 and only then did I find peace of mind.

Now that we are all grown and married, I know these feelings should be cast aside, but they still haunt me. I get physically ill when I am around these relatives. What is the solution? -- -B. D. F.

Dear B. D. F.: Understanding and forgiving are marks of maturity. If you have been unable to conquer your hostility, stop pretending and stop feeling guilty.

Many people dislike their relatives -- often justifiably. To feel one way and behave another way is what makes people sick. See as little of the clan as possible. When you can deal more honestly with your relatives they will not make you ill.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

REFUGEES AGAIN -- A U. S. Army hellicopter unloads a group of flood refugees in a rainstorm at Fortuna, Calif., as a massive airlift from the Eel River valley gets under way. These refugees, residents of the farming community of Shively, 40 miles south of Fortuna, had just returned to their homes when a new flood warning, the second in less than a month, was issued.

Study Shows Suicide Rates Unaffected By Joblessness

Unemployment, at least in the past decade, has not been an important factor in the causation of suicide, a study indicated today.

Suicide rates for the years 1954-1961 in 13 principal labor market areas of Pennsylvania were compared with unemployment rates in the same period.

In spite of wide differences between areas in average unemployment rates, there was no evidence of corresponding variation in suicide rates of either men or women, either for the ages 15 to 84 or for the more limited age range of 35 to 64.

The study was reported by Bonnie Walbran, B. A., and Brian MacMahon, M.D., Harvard University School of Public Health, Boston, and Albert E. Bailey, Ph.D., Department of Health, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, in the Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association.

In Altoona in 1958 unemployment was at one of its highest levels and the suicide rate for men aged 35 to 64 was at its lowest, the study revealed. Lancaster had its highest suicide rate in 1956 when the percentage of unemployed was at its lowest. In Erie, the percentage of unemployed in 1956-1957 was well below the eight - year average, but the suicide rate was at its highest.

Between 1957 and 1958 the per cent of unemployed doubled, or almost doubled, in six of these areas. In two, the suicide rate increased, in three it decreased, and in one it stayed virtually constant.

Although previous studies have shown that the percentage of unemployed is much higher among persons committing suicide than among the related general population, the researchers said they were inclined to believe, on the basis of the Pennsylvania study, that the high proportion of unemployed among suicide victims results from a social or occupational "drift" associated with characteristics of the impending suicide syndrome.

Other studies have also shown a marked correlation existing between male suicide and unemployment rates during the past four decades. Regarding this the researchers commented:

"It may be that this correlation results from correlation of both variables with one or more of the many other social variables that fluctuate in response to economic circumstances.

"On the other hand, it may be that very marked fluctuations in employment rates, such as occurred during the 1930's and 1940's, may indeed be causally associated with suicide in males, but that the type of fluctuation that has occurred more recently, being smaller in degree and buffered by improved social security arrangements, may not be associated with changes in suicide risk."

The whole teacher-training curriculum has been frozen into law in many states. These are certification requirements, and if you will examine them you will find that many are the icicles of the old system of pedagogy. And behind these laws stands a militant organization with branches in every state and elaborate headquarters in Washington. The solution to the problem of an adequate number of properly trained, competent teachers in the universities lies first in the change of the curriculum for the training of high school teachers.

"Package" Boilers Economical, Efficient

Here's a heating deal to get - hot on.

The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau reports that the modern, compact hydronic (hot water) heating boiler is available today as a complete package, including controls, circulating pump, accessories, tank, piping and wiring connections when you buy it. According to the Bureau, there are several advantages involved.

First is cost. A standardized, factory-engineered and assembled product means less on-site labor, consequently less installation expense.

Job management is simplified. The contractor has fewer parts to order, check and handle. Material losses are reduced. Light-weight packages require fewer men to handle the boiler.

And they're versatile. Compactness permits flexibility of location not possible with built-up systems.

Greater operating efficiency is assured, too. Close-coupled components, short piping runs, integrated control systems and wiring contribute to reduced operating and maintenance cost.

Persons planning to build soon are advised to discuss the advantages of a package boiler with an experienced heating contractor. Package boilers can be used in modernization work as well as in new construction.

Tenth anniversary will be marked April 12, 1965 of the announcement that the Salk polio vaccine was "safe, potent and effective." Since that time hundreds of thousands of Americans have been spared from paralytic polio thanks to vaccine developed with financing entirely from the public through the March of Dimes. Today the March of Dimes organization fights against birth defects —a greater killer and crippler than polio ever was.

ANN LANDERS

Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am so ashamed of my problem I can't discuss it with anyone.

My husband is 40. We have three children. Every evening my husband races the kids to the bathtub and uses all the hot water. He likes to sit in the tub and let the water run -- leaving the drain open. He says he enjoys the "waves" created by the running water. I wouldn't swear to it but I think he floats the baby's rubber duck.

When the kids take their baths I have to heat water on the stove and carry it upstairs, which is a lot of bother. I've asked my husband to be more considerate of me and the children but he sulks and refuses to answer.

Is there a solution to this? -- STUMPED

Dear Stumped: You need a larger water heater -- and you need it now. Put this on the top of your "must have" list and cut corners elsewhere to get it if necessary.

A 40-year-old man who is still playing with rubber ducks is not likely to approach any problem in a mature manner, so work it out alone.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been playing bridge with a certain couple for over 12 years. They are superb bridge players and so are we. The four of us are serious players and there is very little social chatter or foolishness. We have a set game every Thursday night and when we play cards we mean business. It is not uncommon for $40 or $50 to change hands in an evening.

A few days ago I learned that this couple had an elegant dinner party at their club. More than 40 couples were present. My husband and I were not invited. I am deeply hurt.

Shall I tell them at our next card game that if we aren't good enough to be invited to their parties we aren't good enough to play cards with them?--GRAND SLAM

Dear Grand: The answer is in your letter. You said, "When we play cards we mean business." Well, THEY mean business, too, and that's what the relationship means to them.

If you enjoy matching skills with this couple, continue to play cards with them but recognize the fact that you are not social friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Am I mentally ill or what? Whenever I see my family coming up the walk to visit me I want to run to the back of the house and hide. I know it isn't right to feel this way about a mother and two sisters but I do. My husband's family, on the other hand, is wonderful. I love them and they love me.

My childhood memories are nightmarish. There was always a fight at our dinner table. My sisters were mean to me and I hated them. They wore my clothes, took money out of my purse and made me do their work. I left home at 16 and only then did I find peace of mind.

Now that we are all grown and married, I know these feelings should be cast aside, but they still haunt me. I get physically ill when I am around these relatives. What is the solution? -- -B. D. F.

Dear B. D. F.: Understanding and forgiving are marks of maturity. If you have been unable to conquer your hostility, stop pretending and stop feeling guilty.

Many people dislike their relatives -- often justifiably. To feel one way and behave another way is what makes people sick. See as little of the clan as possible. When you can deal more honestly with your relatives they will not make you ill.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting -- And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

REFUGEES AGAIN -- A U. S. Army hellicopter unloads a group of flood refugees in a rainstorm at Fortuna, Calif., as a massive airlift from the Eel River valley gets under way. These refugees, residents of the farming community of Shively, 40 miles south of Fortuna, had just returned to their homes when a new flood warning, the second in less than a month, was issued.

Study Shows Suicide Rates Unaffected By Joblessness

Unemployment, at least in the past decade, has not been an important factor in the causation of suicide, a study indicated today.

Suicide rates for the years 1954-1961 in 13 principal labor market areas of Pennsylvania were compared with unemployment rates in the same period.

In spite of wide differences between areas in average unemployment rates, there was no evidence of corresponding variation in suicide rates of either men or women, either for the ages 15 to 84 or for the more limited age range of 35 to 64.

The study was reported by Bonnie Walbran, B. A., and Brian MacMahon, M.D., Harvard University School of Public Health, Boston, and Albert E. Bailey, Ph.D., Department of Health, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, in the Archives of Environmental Health, published by the American Medical Association.

In Altoona in 1958 unemployment was at one of its highest levels and the suicide rate for men aged 35 to 64 was at its lowest, the study revealed. Lancaster had its highest suicide rate in 1956 when the percentage of unemployed was at its lowest. In Erie, the percentage of unemployed in 1956-1957 was well below the eight - year average, but the suicide rate was at its highest.

Between 1957 and 1958 the per cent of unemployed doubled, or almost doubled, in six of these areas. In two, the suicide rate increased, in three it decreased, and in one it stayed virtually constant.

Although previous studies have shown that the percentage of unemployed is much higher among persons committing suicide than among the related general population, the researchers said they were inclined to believe, on the basis of the Pennsylvania study, that the high proportion of unemployed among suicide victims results from a social or occupational "drift" associated with characteristics of the impending suicide syndrome.

State Senate Wrangles But Adopts Rules

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's Senate wrangled for two hours over its rules and finally adopted them without much change.

Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, attacked the Committee on Economics but failed to muster enough support to do away with it and abandoned the effort finally.

He said the original purpose of the committee was to "stop the nut bills," such as veterans bonus proposals, but instead it had turned into a "stifling rules committee."

He said he thought the Senate itself had courage enough to "vote against such goofy measures as a soldiers' bonus."

Sen. Earl L. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, tried to change the rules so a majority of senators present would decide whether a bill should go to the 11-man Economics Committee. But he was voted down, 8-23, and after that the resistance collapsed.

Sen. John W. Joynt, D-St. Louis, president pro tem, said now that the rules are adopted, he plans to appoint the Senate committees next week so they can get down to business.

Reach for Grapefruit

Tartly - flavored, golden - skinned grapefruit may well be in the spotlight in fresh fruit bins during the next few weeks. While available all year, this colorful citrus is headed for its peak of supply, from now through May.

Although not one of the month's Plentiful Foods, as reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, grapefruit are coming to market in sizable numbers. The 1964-65 crop is forecast at more than 40 million boxes--25 per cent above last year and 2 per cent above average.

To be sure of taking home the best quality grapefruit from this supply, USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service recommends choosing fruit that is firm but springy to the touch, well-shaped and heavy for its size. Heavy, relatively smooth grapefruit usually are thin - skinned and juicy.

Soft, wilted, flabby or excessively lightweight fruit usually are undesirable. But, general surface defects (scale, scars, scratches, discoloration) do not affect edible quality. Thus these are minor considerations.

To avoid thick-skinned grapefruit, beware of a fruit which is somewhat pointed at the stem end and has rough, ridged or wrinkled skin.

Once home, keep grapefruit at cool room temperature -- 60 to 70 degrees. If refrigerated, they should be used within a week.

The corps houses, clothes and feeds them and gives them $30 a month spending money during the training period which may last a year. An additional $50 a month is put aside for the corpsmen to be paid when training is finished.

I tried this once, but I failed to see any difference in my facial beauty. The Portuguese are trying to educate their people, but the natives are opposed to it, because the women now do all the work. The men buy their wives and pay as much as 20 cows for one, and I found one man who bought ten wives."

"Don't ever climb a tree in Africa when looking for wild animals as an elephant can either pull it out of the ground, or push it over. All they want are the leaves out of the top branches."

The living conditions, as told by Miss Duncan, in the southern and western coast line are better than many points in Europe, as 70 per cent of the gold in the world is mined there, as well as a large part of the diamonds.

"There is a section down there that raises small black sheep, for the purpose of making extra quality articles of clothing. The wool must be picked two days after birth, or else the wool will uncurl and the article ruined.

"The Congo section was deemed as the most crucial part of the continent, as in Angola more than 1,000 whites were killed by followers of Mumumba, as well as 10,000 negroes. I learned that Tshombie is well liked in the country.

"When I visited Dr. Schweitzer, I found that the hospital had over 500 patients and 45 nurses. Most of the people work without pay. The doctor is a wonderful man in spite of 90 years today, and he is interested in all world affairs. He trained 13 young gorillas for pets, and now most of them are in zoos. I had one meal that consisted of crocodile meat, but I can't say I enjoyed it."

"My advice to all of you is that if you wish to visit Africa, to get a round trip ticket, and bypass the Congo section."

Matter of Fact

From 30 to 50 gallons of sap are required to yield one gallon of maple syrup. Maple syrup is one of the few crops produced solely in North America and is one of the oldest, having been produced by Indians of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River regions prior to the arrival of white settlers. It is produced in commercial quantities in Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota and West Virginia.

I tried this once, but I failed to see any difference in my facial beauty. The Portuguese are trying to educate their people, but the natives are opposed to it, because the women now do all the work. The men buy their wives and pay as much as 20 cows for one, and I found one man who bought ten wives."

"Don't ever climb a tree in Africa when looking for wild animals as an elephant can either pull it out of the ground, or push it over. All they want are the leaves out of the top branches."

The living conditions, as told by Miss Duncan, in the southern and western coast line are better than many points in Europe, as 70 per cent of the gold in the world is mined there, as well as a large part of the diamonds.

"There is a section down there that raises small black sheep, for the purpose of making extra quality articles of clothing. The wool must be picked two days after birth, or else the wool will uncurl and the article ruined.

"The Congo section was deemed as the most crucial part of the continent, as in Angola more than 1,000 whites were killed by followers of Mumumba, as well as 10,000 negroes. I learned that Tshombie is well liked in the country.

"When I visited Dr. Schweitzer, I found that the hospital had over 500 patients and 45 nurses. Most of the people work without pay. The doctor is a wonderful man in spite of 90 years today, and he is interested in all world affairs. He trained 13 young gorillas for pets, and now most of them are in zoos. I had one meal that consisted of crocodile meat, but I can't say I enjoyed it."

"My advice to all of you is that if you wish to visit Africa, to get a round trip ticket, and bypass the Congo section."

From 30 to 50 gallons of sap are required to yield one gallon of maple syrup. Maple syrup is one of the few crops produced solely in North America and is one of the oldest, having been produced by Indians of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River regions prior to the arrival of white settlers. It is produced in commercial quantities in Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota and West Virginia.

The effects of fate-owned acids,
Dripped upon all souls,
To etch treasured, filigreed designs
And ugly, gaping holes.
